EXTENSION IN DRAFT AGES IS HINTED

U. S. Must Raise Army Big Enough to Whip Germany, Says General March

Washington, Aug. 16.—Passage of the new Man-Power bill, extending the draft ages to 18 to 45, will not preclude the possibility of invasion of the deferred classes, General March, chief of staff, informed the Senate Military Affairs Committee in hearings on the bill, it was revealed this afternoon.

"It is not beyond the range of probability that this conference will have to authorize the invasion of other classes in order to carry the work through," said General March.

No congressional action is required to permit the government to take men of the deferred classes, and for this reason General March's statement was interpreted in some quarters as meaning that the draft ages might again be broadened.

"The United States is going to see this thing through," declared General March at one of the hearings. "Every one will have hardships. No man can go into war without hardship. The way we can win is to put the greatest number of men over there that we can.

"The only way that Germany can be whipped is by going into this thing with the whole strength of the United States," he added.

"Then America has got to put enough men over there to whip Germany?" Senator Kirby asked.

"That is it in a nutshell."

General March revealed that there is little possibility of greatly increasing the armies of either France or England now in the field. He said, however, that both France and England will be able to keep their armies up to their present strength.

"The Allies have a superiority in man-power on the western front for the first time," March added, "because American troops are there in large numbers."

ALLIES REAP WHEAT PLANTED BY GERMANS

By International News Service.

Paris, Aug. 16.—The last allied advances saved the most important of the standing wheat harvest, that had been planted by the Germans on French soil, except in the region of Fere-en-Tardenois (Aisne-Marne front), it was officially announced today. In the Fere-en-Tardenois district the Germans abandoned munitions in order to save the wheat.

CHEATS SOLDIER'S WIDOW; IS JAILED

Sentences aggregating two years and nine months were imposed by Judge Barnes of East Boston today on Michael J. Farrell, thirty-seven, of Dover street, the first man arraigned in Boston for cheating the widow of a soldier. Farrell is alleged to have solicited funds for needy soldiers in France. He is alleged to have got $6 from Mrs. William May, of No. 102 Marginal street, whose husband he said had been killed in France while serving in the Canadian forces. It was claimed the $6 was for collecting May's insurance money for the widow.

He was found guilty on four charges. Three months was his sentence for not having a useful occupation, six months for the larceny of $1 from Mrs. May, one year for attempting to collect money by posing as a Canadian agent, and one year for the larceny of $6 from Mrs. May.

CLEARING HOUSE BAN ON GENERAL MOTORS

The Clearing House committee of the Stock Exchange today issued an order banning General Motors from the privilege of clearing and making delivery of actual stocks imperative following sales. This action followed an investigation of feverish fluctuations in trading in General Motors common stocks.

GUN FIRE FOLLOWS TORPEDO

Motorship Madragado Destroyed by U-Boat—22 Starving Members of Crew Rescued

By International News Service.

An Atlantic Port, Aug. 16.—The 1,288-ton Brazilian motorship Madragado was torpedoed and then sunk by shellfire from an enemy submarine south of this port yesterday, according to twenty-two members of the crew, who reached here this noon.

The survivors were rescued from lifeboats, in which they abandoned the motorship, by the Norwegian steamship Pointen from Fort Antonio, Jamaica.

The men were without provisions or adequate clothing and only the timely arrival of the Pointen saved their lives.

American Transport Beats Off Attack by U-Boat Armed With 6-Inch Guns

An Atlantic Port, Aug. 16.—An American transport beat off a monster U-boat in a battle 150 miles off the coast, Tuesday, it was learned here. The submarine was as large as a modern torpedo boat destroyer. Two six-inch guns were mounted fore and aft on the diver.

When the commander of the U-boat sighted the transport he ordered it to stop.

Spirited gun fire from the transport was the answer received by the German. The weapons on the transport were of small calibre. As a result none of the shots fired reached their mark.

The submarine then opened a brisk fire. Its guns were also beyond range, with the result that the transport was not hit.

The driver did not show any inclination to try conclusions with the transport at close quarters. It kept out of range.

Officers on the transport viewed the U-boat through powerful glasses as it lay upon the surface firing shells. It was the largest submarine the American officers had ever seen.

Wireless Operator on the Penistone Tells of Attack Without Warning

Military Chiefs Try to Arouse Ardor of Germans

By International News Service.

Amsterdam, Aug. 16.—German military chiefs are attempting to rouse the waning ardor of the people with appeals, according to information from Berlin today. General Ludendorff was quoted as saying that "Germany must fight, until she conquers."

Both Field Marshal Hindenburg and Ludendorff were credited by the Duesseldorf Nachrichten with declaring that "Germany must have colonies to insure raw materials—without which there could be no industry adequate to prosperity."

$200,000 MILL FIRE LOSS IN STOUGHTON

State Police Probe Cause of Blaze at Plant Engaged in War Work

Stoughton, Aug. 16.—Fire of unknown origin caused damage of $200,000 today at the French and Ward woolen mills, engaged in war work. The State police are investigating. Five hundred hands are thrown out of work.

The watchman was in another part of the plant when a resident of the vicinity discovered that the northeast corner of the main building was aflame. A still alarm was sounded. Later aid was summoned from Canton and from Brockton. The fire was discovered on the ground floor of the big structure, which was four stories high, and over 135 feet long. The flames spread rapidly and consumed not only the main building and its contents but several smaller structures.

Other surrounding buildings, including residences, were saved only by a stiff battle on the part of Brockton firemen. There was no heat in the building where the fire started, and when the watchman passed through there on his rounds a short time before discovery of the fire all was well.

Big German Force in Petrograd; Kaiser Plans Monarchy

Copyright, 1918, by Universal Service.

London, Aug. 16.—German troops already are in Petrograd, in strong force.

With the power of the Lenine-Trotzky government declining daily, the Kaiser has set afoot a scheme for the re-establishment of the monarchy in Russia.

That monarchy the Kaiser proposes to use to oppose Russian democracy, and the allies who are coming through Siberia.

A new Eastern front, more to the east than the present boundary of German occupation, is likely to be established in the process of the new German scheme.

These startling developments, showing that Germany is not sleeping while the allies are giving aid to the Czecho-Slovaks and the Russian democrats, were revealed today by Dr. David Soskice, an influential Russian democrat whose knowledge of the precise conditions in Russia surpasses that of almost any man outside his disrupted homeland. He was the bulwark of the first Russian provisional government. As secretary to Premier Kerensky, he aided greatly in furthering democratic principles in his strife torn country.

BOLSHEVIKI DOOMED.

Dr. Soskice is now head of an international corporation. He knows Russia as a doctor knows his patient. He said:

"The downfall of the Bolsheviki, due to the rising tide of the Russian socialists and liberals, if not already

VICTORY BY BOLSHEVIKI CLAIMED

Soviet Government Reports Violent Fighting South of Archangel

Amsterdam, Aug. 16.—The Bolsheviki have fortified and taken refuge in the Kremlin at Moscow, said a dispatch from that city today. The entrances are commanded by guns and large stores of food and other supplies have been accumulated there. The Kremlin is a great castle in the middle of Moscow, occupying a hill on the bank of the Moskva. It is surmounted by twenty-one towers and there are five gateways leading into it.

Stockholm, Aug. 16.—"Violent fighting" between Bolsheviki and "Enemy" forces in the region of Onega, about 100 miles South of Archangel, through which Allied troops are advancing, is reported in an official statement of the Soviet government transmitted here from Moscow today.

The "bulletin" insists that the battle resulted in a Bolshevist victory. It reads:

"In the direction of Archangel we captured enemy positions near Onega. The enemy abandoned them after violent fighting.

(It was announced yesterday that allied forces advancing toward Vologda had reached Paberezeckkala, about 100 miles south of Archangel.)

"On the Eastern Czecho-Slovak front we landed at Nesiemera and advanced to Kasyzero. The Czecho-Slovaks under General Kamiloff were forced to retire. On the Western Czecho-Slovak white guards attacked Sewissalisk, but were repulsed."

Pershing Entertains Naval Affairs Committee

By ERNEST P. ORR,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army in France, Aug. 16.—The naval affairs committee of the American House of Representatives, now in Europe, was received yesterday by General Pershing and entertained at luncheon.

The committeemen were shown over headquarters, while General Pershing explained the military operations. The representatives will leave tomorrow for Italy.

"The spirit and solidarity of the allies is wonderful," said Representative Frederick Hicks of New York.

MANY KILLED IN AIR ATTACK ON PARIS

Heavy Bombardment by German Fleet Continues an Hour and a Half

Paris, Aug. 16.—Paris was bombed at 11 o'clock last night by enemy air raiders. The attack continued for an hour and a half, a considerable number of the civilian population being killed and wounded.

This is the first raid upon the French capital by air since the beginning of the July offensive by the allies, and comes undoubtedly as an answer to the recent effective bombing work done by the allied aviators in destroying military centres in German cities.

LIEUT. MACLURE, BAY STATE FLIER, MISSING

With the American Army in France, Aug. 16.—Lieutenant Henry Maclure, of Massachusetts, a member of the American Flying Corps, is reported missing. He disappeared on July 18. On that day Maclure, with three other aviators, was protecting our photographing planes on the Toul front. The planes passed through a bank of clouds. When the three others emerged Maclure was missing. As there had been no anti-aircraft fire, it is believed Maclure met with an accident to his machine and was forced to land behind the enemy lines.

CURLEY AND FITZGERALD PAPERS FAIL TO APPEAR

Neither Ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald nor Ex-Mayor James M. Curley had filed congressional nomination papers early this afternoon. William H. O'Brien of the telephone bureau of the Public Service Commission, was the only opponent to Congressman James A. Gallivan. The two former executives of the city had until 5 o'clock to file their papers, however. In the 10th District papers have been filed for Peter M. Tague, J. H. Brennan, "Tom" Giblin and T. F. Caffey. Congressman George Holden Tinkham remains unopposed for the Republican nomination in the 11th District, as does Frank J. Horgan for the Democratic nomination.

1,520,000 GERMANS KILLED DURING WAR

Paris, Aug. 16.—Up to mid-June 1,520,000 German soldiers had been killed since the war began. It was semi-officially estimated here today.

BRITISH PRESSING CLOSE TO ALBERT

London, Aug. 16 (1:10 p. m.)—Another withdrawal has been made by the Germans in the Serre sector (north of Albert) and on the Lys salient of the Flanders front, according to information received this afternoon. The Germans gave up positions east of Vieux Berquin and Meteren on the northern flank of the Lys salient. The British on the Picardy front have captured Damery and Parvillers. (The capture of Damery and Parvillers was announced by the British War Office last night.)

By FRANK CHARLTON,
International News Service Cable Editor.

British and French troops advanced on both the Picardy and Flanders fronts during the last twenty-four hours. British forces have reached the outskirts of Albert; French troops are at the threshold of the German base at Roye. Lassigny is being slowly but surely enveloped.

The gains may be summarized as follows:

Picardy front: Left flank—British advance northeast of Morlancourt while patrols cross the Ancre and reach Thiepval wood.

Centre—British capture Damery and Parvillers and make progress southeast of Proyart.

Right flank—French advance east of Armancourt and extend lines in the sectors of Villers les Rois and St. Aurin, about three miles from Roye.

Flanders front—British advance southeast of Vieux Berquin on the Lys salient, where the Germans have been falling back.

The retirement of the Germans north of Albert and their simultaneous retreat on the Lys salient indicate the German high command is resolved upon a widespread retrograde movement embracing large portions of two battle areas.

Without delivering any such big scale infantry attacks as marked the opening of the allied counter-drive in Picardy on August 8, the British, French and Americans are harassing the foe with fierce local attacks, meanwhile infiltrating the German positions and "nibbling" the lines. Such tactics have been made necessary at many points by the condition of the terrain and the heavily defended positions with their bristling machine gun nests. As the Germans give ground they are hotly pursued by cavalry and light infantry and as quickly as a German position is given up, it is seized and organized.

On the northern end of the Picardy zone the British and Americans are back upon the ground made historic in the Spring

AUTOIST HELD FOR TRIAL FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

John W. Sullivan, a liquor dealer of Wallingford road, Brighton, was before the district court at Quincy today charged with operating an automobile under the influence of liquor and also with reckless driving. He pleaded not guilty to both charges and Judge Avery held him for trial August 26.

British Advance Eastward Beyond the Ancre River and to Forest of Thiepval

By International News Service.

London, Aug. 16.—British forces again advanced north of the Somme River during the night, extending their lines east of Morlancourt and crossing to the left bank of the Ancre, the War Office reported at noon. Fresh progress was scored between Beaumont-sur-Ancre, Puisieux and Aumont (Miraumont). The scene of the British advance was on the ground over which the Germans began their retreat on Wednesday, giving up the salient which bulged into the British front of Albert. British patrols that crossed the Ancre River advanced to the Thiepval wood.

The War Office report follows:

"We advanced our lines slightly northeast of Morlancourt during the night.

"Our patrols crossed the Ancre River to the left bank, reaching Thiepval forest after local fighting. British patrols progressed between Beaumont-sur-Ancre, Puisieux and Aumont.

"The hostile artillery was active between La Bassee canal and Ypres and south of the Somme River."

French "Nibble" Through Thiescourt Massif to Envelop Lassigny

By International News Service.

London, Aug. 16 (12:30 p. m.)—The French are "nibbling" their way through Thiescourt massif, endeavoring to envelop Lassigny from Belval, said a dispatch from the Reuter correspondent on the French front today. The Thiescourt massif commands both Noyon and Lassigny.

Teutons Demoralized in Flight; Maps and Papers Abandoned

By BERT FORD,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the British Army on the Picardy Front, Aug. 16.—The demoralization marking the retreat of the German armies is forcefully shown in the chaos them leave behind.

Everywhere there are signs proving unmistakably the ferment of the Teuton mind. Batteries are abandoned. Maps, charts and important papers are scattered here and there. Even boots and other personal effects are abandoned in the wild exodus.

There is plenty of evidence that the Germans will retreat all the way back to the Hindenburg line. Wednesday's evacuation of their forward positions at Beaumont-Hamel, Serre, Puisieux and Bucquoy strengthened this belief. The German withdrawal covers a front of 4,000 yards to a depth of more than 1,000 yards. The British forces are pushing on and keeping in close touch with the enemy. Considerable ground has been gained in the vicinity of these villages. The ground yielded by the Germans is located between Albert and Arras.

North of the Ourcq River some of the bitterest fighting in the war took place. The British losses were heavy in that region. The enemy's swift, silent retirement for the purpose of taking up stronger positions in the rear caused some surprise. Recently the Germans also evacuated their positions in the Hobuterne sector.

"Metal ghouls" have become common in Germany. Graves are pillaged for precious metals. Lead is stripped from coffins. Jewelry is taken from bodies. The seriousness of the German metal shortage has brought precarious pinnacle.

The shortage of metal is shown by the conditions of the villages recaptured by the British in their recent advance. The officers report that vaults in the formerly Meseres have been broken into and the lead stripped from the coffins. Prisoners admit taking jewelry from the bodies.

At Caix a dump several kilometers in extent was full of material, including lead stripped from the houses. The Germans have nightly been bombing this dump in an attempt to destroy the material which they were forced to abandon in their hasty retreat.

French Troops Sweep on Toward Important German Base at Roye

By International News Service.

Paris, Aug. 16.—French troops made another advance nearer to the German base of Roye during the night.

Progress was made in the region of Villers les Rois and St. Aurin, on the front of the Avre River, the French War Office announced today.

East of Armancourt the French have reoccupied their old first lines. There were raids elsewhere. The communique follows:

"On the Avre front the French have made fresh progress in the region of Villers les Rois and St. Aurin."

(Villers les Rois is three miles northwest of Roye. St. Aurin is slightly more than a mile south of the former town.)

"East of Armancourt we reoccupied our old first lines.

"In the Champagne we took prisoners in a raid in the sector of Perthes les Hurlus.

"East of Maisons de Champagne we repulsed a German raid.

"Elsewhere there is nothing to report."

Allies Warned to Ignore "Peace Whine" From Over the Rhine

By JOHN McHUGH STUART,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Aug. 16.—Warnings against any "Whine from across the Rhine" and against any peace at this time which would allow the German military party to prepare for a new war were sounded by an important French personage today in an interview with the International News Service.

It was pointed out that despite the change in the military situation since the Americans went into the struggle at Chateau Thierry, the military party is still in the saddle in Germany.

At the same time the prediction was made that German armies would assume the defensive on shorter battle lines, which would enable them to offer stiffer resistance.

"The Germans may appeal for peace when still far from beaten, as attempts of this sort have already been seen in the news from Holland," said the informant.

"If peace overtures were accepted now the German military party would only prepare for a new war, pleading that they were beaten this time by America's intervention, but predicting victory 'the next time' against France and Britain alone.

"The situation shows that Germany can be decisively beaten, but the decisive beating still remains to be administered.

"We still require sacrifices without which all the heroic sacrifices hitherto would be in vain."

The prediction of a "peace whine" was based on news telling of a division of opinion in Germany. As regards the military situation it was stated that the allies must maintain the initiative until a coup de grace is possible. This will be a difficult job, it was declared, but a necessary one.

Three U. S. Aviators, One From Bay State, Win Battles in Air

With the American Army on the Alsne-Vesle Front, Aug. 16.—Three American lieutenants of the flying corps scored in the air, late yesterday, and brought down German planes. They are Lieutenant Harold Buckley of Springfield, Mass.; Lieutenant Edward P. Curtis of Rochester and Lieutenant Charles Glavati, Port Royal, Va. Each of these shot down his German opponent in the Vesle region. In addition Lieutenant John Mitchell of Manchester, Mass., is believed to have shot down a German plane in an encounter.

With the American Army in France, Aug. 16.—American bombing planes successfully attacked railway yards at Dommary and Baroncourt, doing effective damage. A German observer who was attacked by an American airman jumped from his machine.

American aviators are bringing down German machines at an average of four to one.

M'ADOO TO WIN FIGHT FOR 80 PER CENT. TAX ON WAR PROFITS

LUXURIES HIT HARD IN NEW DRAFT OF THE REVENUE BILL

By RICHARD BOECKEL.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Aug. 16.—After two months of work the $8,000,000,000 war revenue bill was practically completed by the House Ways and Means Committee today. One long important decision remained to be made—whether the committee shall accept the McAdoo profits taxation plan or cling to the Kitchen system. Upon this a score of minor decisions naturally hinge.

As the bill stands today it will bring in, the committee admits, half a billion dollars less than the $8,000,000 minimum insisted upon by Secretary McAdoo, according to Treasury Actuary McCoy. Dr. Adams, another treasury expert, however, asserted that on matter which profits plan is finally adopted, the return from the bill as now written must be far exceed the required amount. To be on the safe side, the committee probably will accept the lower figures.

80 PER CENT. ON WAR PROFITS.

Indications today were that the McAdoo profits plan will be adopted by the committee without radical change. Under this plan war profits would be taxed at 80 per cent., with the average profits of the three years 1911-1912 and 1913 taken as the basis of computation. Excess profit levies, however, would run from 10 to 60 per cent. with the exemption remaining as at present. The Kitchin scheme would make these taxes 10 to 80 per cent. In addition there would be a normal profits tax of 18 per cent. on undistributed profits and 12 per cent. on profits distributed.

Treasury experts say the McAdoo scheme would yield $2,000,000 as against $2,500,000,000 to be returned by the Kitchin plan. Some members favored compromise, but the majority seemed to be leaning toward the McAdoo plan without change.

TWENTY-SEVEN PAYMENTS.

The bill as it now stands is the most stupendous piece of revenue legislation ever put before any Congress. It requires the payment in taxes of $2,700,000,000 more than the total outstanding currency. To prevent the chaotic conditions that would result if an attempt were made to pay all these taxes on one day or in one month an installment system of payment will be provided in the bill.

After a summing up that will be undertaken when the profits tax question is finally decided the committee then will turn to special taxes. The liquor taxes will be taken up last. They will be more than doubled—possibly tripled.

The proposal for a 1 per cent. sales tax to apply generally does not appear in the bill. It is said it would have yielded $2,000,000,000, but would have been extremely difficult of collection. The bill will be made to yield the required amount without it.

ON INCOMES AND LUXURIES.

The principal burdens will be borne, as the President desires, by excess profits income and luxuries. The committee has decided that the normal tax on the first $4,000 of taxable income shall be 6 per cent., with the existing exemption still in force. The normal tax on incomes above $4,000 will be 10 per cent., with the following surtaxes:

8 per cent. on proportion of income between $5,000 and $7,500.
8 per cent. between 7,500 and $10,000.
10 per cent. between $10,000 and $15,000.
15 per cent. between $15,000 and $20,000.
20 per cent. between $20,000 and $30,000.
25 per cent. between $30,000 and $40,000.
30 per cent. between $40,000 and $50,000.
35 per cent. between $50,000 and $60,000.
40 per cent. between $60,000 and $70,000.
45 per cent. between $70,000 and $80,000.
48 per cent. between $80,000 and $90,000.
50 per cent. between $90,000 and $100,000.
55 per cent. between $100,000 and $200,000.
60 per cent. between $200,000 and $300,000.
65 per cent. between $300,000 and $500,000.
70 per cent. between $500,000 and $1,000,000.
75 per cent. between $1,000,000 and $5,000,000.
80 per cent. on all incomes over $5,000,000.

RAINEY WILL FIGHT.

The scale of inheritance taxes agreed upon will give a heavy yield, but Representative Rainey, raining Democrat on the committee, announced today he would make a fight to have the tax levied on the estates of over $1,000,000 radically increased. There is an original exemption of $50,000, and the taxes thereafter follow:

6 per cent. on proportion of inheritance between $50,000 and $150,000.
9 per cent. between $150,000 and $250,000.
12 per cent. between $250,000 and $450,000.
15 per cent. between $450,000 and $1,000,000.
18 per cent. between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000.
21 per cent. between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000.
24 per cent. between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000.
27 per cent. between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000.
30 per cent. between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000.
35 per cent. between $6,000,000 and $10,000,000.
40 per cent. on all beyond $10,000,000.

These estate taxes may seriously interfere with similar State taxes and probably will necessitate revision of State laws so that the Federal tax may be taken out before the State tax is calculated.

TWO KINDS OF LUXURIES.

Luxuries are recognized in the bill as being of two sorts, one in the very nature, such as electric fans, jewelry, photographs, thermos bottles, tapestries, pianos, etc., and the other by its cost.

The out and out luxuries are taxed at a rate of 10 per cent. Of minimum jewelry there is an additional tax of 10 per cent. and each sale must be registered.

On cosmetics there is a one cent tax for each 10 cents of the selling price or fraction thereof. Taxes of 20 per cent. on the amount of the selling price exceeding the following maximum figures are levied on the following luxuries of the second class:

Men's and women's suits and coats in excess of $50; women's dresses, ready made, $40; women's hats, $25; men's hats, $5, and caps, $2; men's and women's shoes, $10; neckties, $2; men's silk hose, $1. women's, $2; men's shirts, $3, and pajamas, $5; fancy vests, $5; smoking jackets, bathrobes, $10; fans, $1; umbrellas, parasols, $4; traveling bags, all kinds, $25; trunks, $50; fiber carpets, $5 a square yard; picture frames, $10.

TAXED 1,000 PER CENT.

Firearms are taxed at a rate of 25 per cent. and cartridges at 10 per cent. Bowie knives, dirks, brass knuckles, etc., pay 1,000 per cent.

Automobiles and motor cycles bear a manufacturers' tax of 10 per cent., and wagons, trailers and tractors of 5 per cent.

The following are the federal license taxes to be assessed against auto owners:

Less than twenty-three horsepower, $10; twenty-three to thirty horsepower, $20; thirty-one to forty horsepower, $30; over forty horsepower, $50.

In addition the owner of a gas car must pay a two-cent tax on every gallon of gasoline, $25 extra per $5 per horsepower and fifty cents for each 100 pounds of weight. Motor cyclists pay a flat $5 license tax. A license tax of $10 must be paid for each retail establishment doing business of more than $2,000 a year and a similar tax applies against professional men.

Wholesale business in excess of $200,000 a year must pay $25.

DOUBLE TOBACCO TAXES.

The tobacco taxes are practically double the present rates. They follow:

Cigars, weight three pounds per 1,000, $2 a thousand. Cigars, weight more than three pounds per 1,000 and selling at less than four cents, $5 a thousand.

Cigars retailing between four and seven cents $10, between seven and 13 cents $15, between 13 and 20 cents $20, over 20 cents $30. Cigarettes, weighing not more than three pounds per 1,000, retailing at less than two cents, $4.10, and over at two cents, $5.10.

Cigarettes, weight more than three pounds per thousand, $9.60 a thousand. Cheroots and snuff, 20 cents a pound.

Life insurance policy holders pay nine cents for each $100 except in group insurance, where groups not exceeding 25 pay four cents for each $100. Marine, fire, casualty and inland assurance is taxed at one cent on each $1, while for industrial policies for $600 or less the rate is 6 per cent. of the first weekly or monthly premium.

20 PER CENT. ON CLUB DUES.

The tax rate on oil pipe lines is 4½ per cent. on freight, 5 per cent. on passenger, and Pullman tickets 8 per cent. Capital stock is taxed at a rate of $1 on each $1,000 of value. The stamp taxes have not yet been considered, but the likelihood is they will be doubled.

The question of equalizing taxes on telephone calls and telegrams remains to be decided, but the tax on leased wires, aside from newspaper wires, is 10 per cent.

A 20 per cent. tax is levied on club dues and admission tickets, with a one-cent rate on all admissions under seven cents.

Taxes on movie films are 5 per cent. on rentals, in lieu of ¼ per cent. on each 100 feet, and 5 per cent. per foot on each foot of developed film.

Manufacturers of soft drinks will pay a tax of 10 per cent. on the value of their output, and soda fountain patrons will pay 2 cents on every 10-cent drink or confection.

The bill will be reported to the House about the end of next week.

U. S. TRANSPORT BEATS OFF SUBMARINE

Survivors of U-Boat Raid Tell Thrilling Stories of Experiences at Sea

he was returning was held up by the raider and the captain taken prisoner, were told to an AMERICAN reporter today by the wireless operator, William H. C. Holloway of Westcliff, England.

The story of the torpedoing, which took place Sunday, was told when survivors landed here after four days of tossing on the ocean and a 200-mile trip in open boats.

One man was killed, three terribly scalded and one captured when the raider, appearing suddenly alongside the freight steamer, sent a torpedo crashing into her broadside. The torpedoing occurred about 10:30 in the morning.

BELIEVE U-BOAT DESTROYED.

It is believed that the U-boat was sunk yesterday by a submarine chaser.

The captain of the submarine chaser reported today that he dropped three depth bombs on a submerged U-boat which was located near the scene of the sinking early yesterday morning.

The chaser remained five hours in the vicinity to see that the submarine did not appear again on the surface.

The casualties of the torpedoing were:

Killed—Cavidor Howells, 23, of Cardiff, Wales, fourth engineer of the Penistone.

Wounded—Osborn Robert and Delaney Alex, firemen, both shipped from Algeria, and Miguel Cotes, Chili.

Captured—Captain David Evans, of Neddigar, Wales.

The Penistone was owned by the Gould family of London, England.

Wireless Operator Holloway said:

AFLOAT OVER AN HOUR.

"I was on watch in my wireless room on the upper deck of the Penistone when we saw a submarine on our starboard, about 200 yards distant. Without any warning it suddenly hurled a torpedo at us which struck fairly amidships in the boiler room.

"We had a French gunner aboard who fired three times at the U-boat before she ducked out of sight, but evidently to his excitement the shots went wild.

"As we left the sinking ship, we saw an American boat approaching, which opened fire. The Penistone was not afire for an hour and a half, and the captain ordered us back. I ventured the suggestion that if the wireless room was still intact we could send out a call. It was never sent, however, for the U-boat came speeding alongside and one of the officers asked in very good English which was our captain. They took him on board, and then submerged.

"The three firemen who were terribly scalded and burned were in our room. We laid them out on the bottom and did what we could for them, but had no bandages or ointment.

"No one touched water for two days, for we had only one small cask and did not know when we should reach land.

GROPING THROUGH FOG.

"The injured men could not open their mouths wide enough to eat ship biscuits. I had a bottle of malted milk tablets. By inserting them in the mouths of the injured men now and then was able to keep up their strength for four days. During a heavy fog it rained at times and we were drenched to the skins.

"Imagine our dispair when we heard a ship's propellers in the fog. We yelled but could not make them hear.

"The next day, Monday, we passed the South Nomadic and the Glasgow Progress. She was half full of water and the seas broke over her. There was no sign of life aboard of her.

"Tuesday night during a storm our mast was cut off and the line that held the second boat parted. We sent up rockets in the night to locate the missing boat. Finally we were able to throw a line to them and make fast once more.

"Wednesday morning and still no sight of land. Our injured men were getting weaker. Then Liegfield, third engineer, collapsed.

"After another terrible night Thursday broke fair and cool. A mighty shout went up from the two boats. We could see land! We landed at Highland Light about noon, where we received a royal reception."

Collars on Army Uniforms Give Men Boils

High stiff collars on army uniforms make boils on the neck.

If you want further information, ask some of the officers and enlisted men who have joined the company of Hezekiah and Job and have been nursing boils for more than three weeks.

The sufferers have been poisoned by a dye in the army cloth, Colonel Lewis Brechemin, department surgeon, is giving his attention to the matter.

Several of the officers have taken to the wearing of "Job Comforters," a string of beads, an old remedy for these bunches.

GOV. BEECKMAN IN STATE WAR ON GAMBLING

Lid Clamped on Narragansett Pier "Old King" Slattery Loses Crown

Narragansett Pier, Aug. 16.—Gambling in Rhode Island is going to stop, if Governor Livingston Beeckman has to call upon his private fortune to meet expenses.

This is the substance of an order issued by the Governor today to High Sheriff Wilcox of Rhode Island County. As a result of the order, Narragansett Pier, which has been a storm centre in the late crusade against games of chance, and other places which have been maintaining wide open resorts, were today practically bereft of gaming tables.

While the Governor's order applies specifically to Rhode Island County, with particular reference to the Pier, it is understood that the stamping out of this vice will be State-wide, and that impeachment proceedings will be started against any sheriff who fails to do his duty.

Among those most affected by the unaccustomed enforcement of the law is Mike Slattery, long known as the "Gambling King" of Rhode Island County, who is said to control 90 per cent. of the gaming in the State, and has openly boasted that he had the officers of the law under his thumb. "Mike" was out on the cool today, and when he came to a show down that the "thumb" to which he trusted had lost its power of pressure.

His son-in-law is Mike Lynch, a former Brown College and Pittsburgh National League baseball pitcher.

Activities of the gentry at the horse races at Hillsgrove, outside Providence, were the immediate occasion of the shakeup. It has long been the custom for the bookmakers to gather in connection with the races and, naturally, their gains aroused the avarice of the bigger gamblers. In trying to get a finger in the pools themselves, they stirred up trouble which attracted the attention of the authorities.

LYNN MOTORCYCLIST'S SKULL IS FRACTURED

Lynn, Aug. 16.—Amabele J. Bois of No. 4 Varnum court, employed at the Charlestown Navy Yard, is on the dangerous list at the Lynn Hospital, suffering from a fractured skull received when he struck a sharp marsh road when the motorcycle, with sidecar attached, which he was operating, was crowded against the fence rail of the road by a wagon and overturned. The machine was wrecked. Bois attempted to pass the wagon by a narrow space. Bois is forty-five years of age, is married and has five children.

FIVE HELD FOR USING MAILS TO DEFRAUD

Officials and Employes of Warren Soap Co. Arrested Under Tennessee Indictments

Five persons, one of them a Newton woman, were arrested on secret indictments returned by a Federal Grand Jury of Chattanooga, Tenn., were arraigned at the Federal Building today, charged with using the mails to defraud in connection with the business of the Warren Soap Company of No. 77 Summer street, in supplying woolen mills throughout the country with soap.

Those under arrest are: Mrs. Martha Wheeler of Newton, accountant of the Warren Soap Company.

Edward Trowbridge of Pinckney street, a vice-president of the concern.

Charles H. Baker of Beacon street, a vice-president.

Allen H. Bixby of Lowell, a salesman of the company.

Stephen Libby of Olive street, Watertown, superintendent of the factory of the company in Watertown.

Josephine E. Randlett, assistant treasurer of the company is also under indictment but has not been arrested as she is absent from the city.

All of the defendants pleaded not guilty and were held in $5,000 each to appear at Chattanooga for trial.

In connection with the case the arrest of W. H. Durkee, formerly superintendent of the Cleveland Woolen Mills at Cleveland, was ordered today. Durkee is in Virginia. He is alleged to have cleared $20,000 through the practices of which the government complains.

It is claimed by the government that Durkee and others entered into a conspiracy whereby soap of an inferior character was palmed off on the mills.

The owners of the Cleveland Mills learned of this, and Durkee's relations with them were severed.

The offenses for which the Boston people were arrested today are alleged to have occurred between 1910 and 1916.

United States Attorney Kennelly stated today that these practices had been investigated by the Federal Trade Commission, which instituted proceedings against the Warren company. The latter filed a written answer admitting the allegations and promising to discontinue this sort of trading.

POLICEWOMEN BEGIN DUTY IN NEW YORK

New York, Aug. 16.—Six uniformed policemen, the first in this city, armed with "billies," revolvers and handcuffs, started on duty today, and will pay particular attention to the welfare of girls.

DORCHESTER TO GET IMPROVED CAR SERVICE

Assurance Given of Changed Conditions by Public Commission

That the residents of Dorchester may confidently look forward to a general improvement of street-car service under public control of the Boston Elevated was declared by the Public Service Commission in an order issued today.

The commission dismissed, for lack of jurisdiction, several old complaints against service, particularly in the Dorchester section.

The commission pointed out that several minor improvements had already been undertaken and then added:

"The surface tracks of Dorchester avenue have also been widened, thus making it possible for the first time to operate the semi-convertible cars over that route. Locations for track widening on other streets in the Dorchester district have been obtained, and it is expected that the work of construction will be undertaken within a few months.

"The twenty-four articulated cars have been practically eliminated from the Dorchester lines and such articulated cars as are still run are of the twenty-five-foot type.

"A further improvement will be made when the new trailer cars, which the company expects to receive within a short time, are put in operation. At a later time a considerable number of the new centre-entrance cars recently ordered by the company should also be available for service in this district.

"With these and other improvements made possible by the remedial legislation recently enacted for the Boston Elevated Railway Company, the residents of Dorchester may confidently anticipate receiving reasonably adequate street railway service in the near future."

NO ONE RESPONSIBLE IN 4 DEDHAM INQUESTS

Judge Kenneth Nash of the Quincy District Court, who filed four inquest reports today in the Supreme Court at Dedham, found no one responsible for the deaths of Frank Flanagan, a Quincy conductor, who was struck by a passing electric car while collecting fares from the running board of his car, and Joseph Walsh of Quincy, killed on June 22, in stepping in front of an automobile; John O. Wells of Quincy, who fell from an electric car on December 4, and Alfras Du Bord, also of Quincy, who fell in front of a moving automobile on July 28.

26 SUFFRAGISTS SPURN FINES, TAKE JAIL TERMS

Washington, Aug. 16.—Twenty-six of the suffrage demonstrants of the National Woman's party, arrested at attempted mass meetings in Lafayette Park, opposite the White House, were sentenced to jail. Seven others who had been arrested were released for lack of identification.

Of those sentenced seventeen are to serve fifteen days, eight to serve ten days and one woman five days. Among them was a Massachusetts woman, Mrs. Irving Gross, who received a fifteen-day sentence. Alternative of fines were offered, but were rejected, the women contending that payment would be confession of guilt.

The women will be confined in an old workhouse connected with the district jail that has been prepared especially for their occupancy within the last few days since they began their demonstrations.

REPORT 100,000 GERMANS NOW IN PETROGRAD

Kaiser Plans to Re-establish Monarchy and Fight Allied Expedition

accomplished, is certainly an event which cannot long be delayed.

"The German government has taken note of the impossibility of its Bolshevik allies remaining in power. The removal of the German embassy from Moscow is a clear indication that Germany—probably on the advice of her new ambassador, Dr. Helfferich—has resolved not to put any more money on the wrong horse.

"A new move is being prepared by the German imperialists in Russia. In their usual methodical way the Germans have been preparing the ground for their new policy in Russia for some time.

"I learn from a reliable eye-witness that in Petrograd a great number of German soldiers and officers already have been concentrated.

"Some put the number as high as 100,000.

"On the Nevsky Prospect one sees hardly anybody but soldiers in German uniforms, and German officers, displaying their usual arrogant demeanor.

"By agreement between Germany and Lenine, the repatriation of German prisoners from Russia has been arranged via Petrograd.

"From the capital these prisoners go through the Russian frontier to Pskoff, which is the present German headquarters.

"Thus a pretext was easily found for concentrating German troops in Petrograd.

"Simultaneously, confidential negotiations were conducted between German diplomats and representatives of the Russian middle classes.

"Also, such secret negotiations were carried on with the head of the Russian patriarch Tchitcherin.

"By alluring promises, such as the reunion of the Ukraine and southern Russia with great Russia, and of access to the Baltic and Black seas, and, most of all, support to the restoration of the old regime, Germany has succeeded in paving the way to a projected alliance between a re-constructed Russian monarchy and the Kaiser.

"The middle and upper classes and the Monarchists, seduced by Germany, are very feeble, and they cannot count upon the support of the masses to any appreciable extent. Those elements are led by two brothers, the Princes Troubetskoy, Gourko, Trutiakoff and probably Krivoshein, who was Minister of Agriculture in the Czar's government.

JOINED BY MILIUKOFF.

"These men have been lately joined by an honest patriot but short-sighted politician, Professor Paul Miliukoff, who has been the leader of the Constitutional party since its formation and who took part in the provisional government in the first few weeks of the Russian Republic's existence as Minister of Foreign Affairs.

"No one can doubt the sincerity of Miliukoff's intentions. His latest German orientation can be explained only by the fact that he has lost faith in Allied help to Russia. His conversion to Germany has caused a rupture with his party and practically amounts to his political suicide."

Here Dr. Soskico paused to remark that he had been a friend of Prof. Miliukoff for twenty years, having translated one of his books into French.

"But the more dangerous movement is in favor of a restoration of the Russian monarchy," he continued, "a movement supported by German bayonets, having been started by Tchitcherin. It is the patriarch's retort to the Bolshevik plunder of the Russian Church.

STREET DEMONSTRATION.

"He is a patriot, a very able old man, with the appearance of an elderly peasant. He enjoys popularity among the plous women of the lower and middle classes. He has arranged lately several religious street demonstrations at Petrograd and Moscow, attended by immense crowds.

"It is by utilizing these two currents that Germany hopes to build up her new political move. She is training troops to move from three centres, Helsingfors, Revat and Pskoff.

"Next month a great church congress will be held in Moscow, at which, according to my information, the restoration of the monarchy will be proclaimed.

"By that time Germany's strategic military preparations in Russia will be completed. By the combined effort of Germany, the Russian monarchists, the Russian church and the Russian reactionary elements, a new holy alliance may be established between a restored Russian monarchy and Germany.

EXPLAINS GERMAN REPORT.

"It is this scheme which, in my opinion, explains the sudden appearance in the German papers of news describing the position of the Bolsheviki rule as desperate and their fall as imminent.

"Meanwhile the Socialist-Liberal Russia is rising to its feet. The territory conquered by the Czecho-Slovaks is rapidly extending through east and northeast Russia, in addition to Siberia.

"The Czecho-Slovaks, who formed the first lever of the latest revolution, are now only the backbone of large volunteer Russian forces which are being increased with amazing rapidity and extent. The new Russian units already are four or five times stronger numerically than are their Czecho-Slovak friends.

"Wherever the Bolsheviki are overthrown, influential local democratic governments are formed, always with one object in view: The liberation of the whole country from Bolsheviki anarchy and from the German invader.

FRIENDLY TO ALLIES.

"Members of these new governments are invariably friendly to the Allies. In northern Russia, my friend, Nicholas Tchaikovsky, well known in America, has been invited to become premier. In Samara, Captain Vladmir Levedeff, who won military laurels, is a volunteer with the French army on the western front, has become the leader of the government in that territory. He was minister of marine in Kerensky's cabinet.

"In Siberia the government, which has its seat at Omsk, is strongly supported by the Siberian Conservative associations, which have a branch office in London. In the Siberian government seven former ministers of the Kerensky Cabinet have responsible positions. The same holds true of the government in Vladivostok.

"There are some difficulties in Siberia on account of the tendency of General Herveih, the self-appointed dictator, who has no influence in Russia, to arrogate power over the country.

"For the sake of avoiding civil war and assuring a smooth development of a true national government it is advisable that the allied representatives in the Far East should refrain from any encouragement to Hervath. He is a disturbing factor. Otherwise the situation is extremely hopeful.

"If the German scheme described above takes root we will have before long Petrograd formally occupied by Germany and the whole of Russia split into two parts along the line running from Finland through Petrograd and perhaps Moscow, and closer southward. And along this line there will be built up a new eastern front where the Russian democratic armies, supported by the allies, will come face to face with German regiments."

MARGUERITE CLARK IS ARMY OFFICER'S BRIDE

Greenwich, Ct., Aug. 16.—Miss Marguerite Clark, the pretty film star and stage favorite, was married here to First Lieutenant H. P. Williams, of the engineering corps, Washington. They started in an automobile immediately after the ceremony for New York. "No wedding breakfast or honeymoon just now for us," remarked the groom, laughing. "We both hays to go back to work."

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Golden of Cincinnati. Lieutenant Williams is the son of F. B. Williams of New Orleans. Prior to his enlistment he was connected with the F. B. Williams Lumber Company of Louisiana.

Father Finds Girl Who Threatened to Drown Self

Marlboro, Aug. 16.—Mary Seaver, the thirteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Seaver, who left her home after writing a letter declaring her body could be found at the bottom of Lake Williams, was located in Ayer by her father and returned to her home.

Love sickness and dejection because her love affair with a neighborhood boy was interfered with by her father are assigned as the causes that led her to leave home.

The local police dragged Lake Williams in an effort to find the body of the girl.

How to Look and Feel Bright in Hot Weather

When depressed by the heat and you want to freshen up for the afternoon or evening just bathe the face in a lotion made by dissolving an ounce of pure powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. You will find this more refreshing than cologne.

If a sunburned nose or face saxolite lotion is remarkably successful. Its action is almost magical. The deeper furrows as well as the finest lines—whether due to age, illness, weather or worry—are immediately affected. Enlarged pores are reduced, flabby skin is "drawn in," facial contour is improved wonderfully. The simple ingredients, of course, can be had at any drug store, and you need not hesitate to try the lotion, as it will not harm any skin in the least.—Advertisement.

Big Increase During Year of Juvenile Delinquents

Juvenile crime has increased to such an extent in Massachusetts during the past year that the institutions in which boys are confined for correction find difficulty in housing the growing number of delinquents.

"The increase in the number of boys committed to the Lyman School at Westboro during the year has been at the rate of 47 per cent.," was the statement today by F. T. Hayford, executive secretary of the board of trustees of Massachusetts training schools.

"Of late institutions confining adult offenders have found that crime among their usual habitues is on the decline. High wages in mills and factories and other sources of employment have had their effect in keeping the usual prison inmate for the outer world.

"But they are also inducing mothers as well as fathers to seek work outside the home, and this has resulted in the boys being left to their own re-

CREDIT MEN TO HAVE McADOO AS GUEST

The Retail Credit Men's National Association, which comprises 5,000 members connected with the credit departments of the large stores of the country, will hold their sixth annual convention at the Copley-Plaza Hotel four days, beginning Tuesday, August 21.

This convention, the most important ever held by the association, will be a special war convention. The part that the credit associations of the country play in the nation's affairs at this time is shown by the fact that the U. S. government has repeatedly suggested that credits should be shortened. The principal subject of the convention will be the discussion among the delegates as to the shortening of these accounts.

In order to explain to the convention the urgent need of conserving the resources of the country and to shorten the terms of credit, that the money now out in charge accounts may be kept in circulation, Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo will appear before the convention and explain what a great part the credit men of the country can play in assisting the government at the present time.

Sidney E. Blandford of the R. H. White Company, is chairman of the convention, representing the Retail Credit Men of Boston, and will open the convention. Governor McCall will welcome the delegates in behalf of the State of Massachusetts and will be followed by Mayor Andrew J. Peters. Extensive plans have been made for the entertainment of the delegates and their wives and families. Auto trips will be taken, and a trip made around Boston harbor.

TO ARRAIGN 28 IN FISH PLOT MONDAY

Twenty-eight of the thirty defendants named in the indictment, which charges them with conspiring to monopolize the fish industry of Boston to prevent competition in the trade, will appear in the Superior Criminal Court on Monday and, after pleas of not guilty, will each furnish bail in the sum of $2,000 for the trial of the case in October.

Arthur Wainwright, one of the original directors of the Bay State Fishing Company who resigned on March 5 last, was arraigned on Thursday and gave his check for $2,000 to insure his future appearance. Ernest A. James, treasurer of the company, who has an important engagement which will take him away from Boston on Monday, was allowed to plead not guilty today and furnished the required surety.

When the sacred indictments are reported, it is customary to issue warrants upon which arrests are made by the police. This mode of procedure has been dispensed with as to the persons accused as a result of the fish investigation, the Government being satisfied that notice only to those men will be sufficient to insure their presence when wanted.

The men indicted are:

Frederick Monroe Dyer, president and organizer of the Bay State Fishing Company, a New York banker.

Galen L. Stone, a director of many corporations and trustee of the Boston Elevated.

Frederick C. Dumaine, a former director of the Bay State Fishing Company and treasurer and trustee of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company.

Charged with manslaughter in the death of Vincent Mason, four-year-son of Mr. and Mrs. James Mason, No. 19 Cottage park, Dorchester, Blaza DeFranco had his case continued to August 23 by Judge Joseph R. ## FIRE IN GIRLS' STATE SCHOOL AT LANCASTER

Lancaster, Aug. 16.—Fire which destroyed one of the wooden powerhouses, with a loss of $1,000, caused considerable excitement among the inmates of the State Industrial School for Girls here early today. Good order was maintained, however, and none of the girls was permitted to leave the dormitories. The blaze started in a pile of soft coal from spontaneous combustion, and destroyed the building before it was extinguished.

Boy Mysteriously Killed by Auto in Charlestown

A three-year-old unidentified boy met his death at Vine street and Hayes square, Charlestown, today in a mysterious manner. The body, terribly mutilated, was found underneath an electric truck owned by the Ward Baking Company, which someone had moved during the absence of the operator, who was in a store delivering bread.

William Pierce of No. 22 Walnut street, Somerville, the driver, left the truck directly outside the store. When he came out he found that the truck had been moved down the street. Peering underneath the truck, he found the child's body.

Peter Swenson of No. 146 Boylston street, Boston, took the body to the Frost Hospital, Chelsea. Pierce was held by the Chelsea police, who notified Medical Examiner Magrath.

MARRIES AFTER POSING AS GIRL 22 YEARS

East Corinth, Me., Aug. 16.—After masquerading twenty-two years as a girl, Eugene Cody Norton startled and amazed fellow townspeople by marrying his teacher, Miss Abby E. Foster, whom he had just returned home with after a vacation in the White Mountains.

The wedding took place in the private offices of Governor Carl E. Milliken at Augusta, and was the first ever solemnized in the State House. Norton subsequently took his physical examination for the draft, but failed to pass.

Norton was known as "Miss Cora" Norton and had gone under the name ever since his birth, twenty-two years ago.

He went away on his vacation in girl's attire, but returned in man's garb and made it known that he was not a woman, but a man, and that he was not going to masquerade in that attire any more. To say that everyone in East Corinth is amazed is to express feebly a very pronounced sentiment.

TOLD HER HE WAS MAN.

Norton's bride, Miss Foster, aged 36, told the story to the AMERICAN correspondent. His mother, she said, dressed him in girls' clothes from early childhood; why she did this, no one knows, but the fact is that Norton had never worn men's clothes until a few weeks ago.

"He has tried to make the change before this," said Mrs. Norton, "but circumstances have arisen that made it impossible. But I defy, I challenge anyone in East Corinth or anywhere else to show that he has been guilty of the slightest indiscretion, even in word. His character is Christian and blameless.

"I am a teacher in East Corinth academy. Mr. Norton was one of my pupils. My motto is to fall in love with my pupils the first day of school and never to fall out of love with them.

"I was fond of him, thinking that he was a girl. He boarded at my house and did chores among the farmers. Three days before school closed last June he came to me and told me he was a man."

"When did you fall in love with him?" asked the reporter.

"Well" she replied with a smile "I don't think that is any of the public's business."

HAIR OF FINE TEXTURE.

Attired in a neat fitting suit, Norton would not be mistaken for a girl. His hair, formerly long, and done up in a pug, was cut short. It was of fine texture, apparently, finer than of most young men. His hands were softer and whiter than the average masculine hand. As to his feet, they seemed to be of average size.

He showed no sign of feminine frailty in stardily refusing to give the reporter any information. His refusal was firmly made in a masculine voice, having nothing of shrillness or softness to it. How he managed to pose as a girl for twenty-two years is a mystery to one who sees him in male attire now.

Men and Women Should Practice This Precept, "Never Marry Except for Love. Be Very Particular That You Love Somebody Who Is Worthy of That Great Gift"

Did you ever say "hour sales are no good"? Every retail merchant will tell you that Saturday morning is the dullest morning of the week. The women have their household end of the week duties to attend to, and you can't get them to leave home on Saturday morning. I do not believe the women will stay at home from 8:30 to 1 tomorrow morning, Saturday or no Saturday, housework or no housework. Read over our 8:30 to 1 specials and, remember, you cannot buy them at the prices quoted after 1 o'clock, noon, on Saturday. Did you ever tell your own husband you were a good manager and very careful with the money? Merchants may excuse me of sacrificing Standard Goods unmercifully and they may wonder what Houghton & Dutton think of my methods, but these things are far from the point, for I know to fill the Houghton & Dutton stores with a Christmas crowd tomorrow, Saturday morning, it will cost money. The consumers must be benefited, interested and enthused over every item.

1000 Porch and Street DRESSES to 1.50

Go Saturday A. M. at

Any merchant would like to sell a thousand dresses in one morning. I not only would like to sell a thousand dresses on Saturday morning, but, bless your dear lives, I will sell a thousand dresses on Saturday morning, or I do not know the Boston people. For a lady to buy a very attractive stripe lawn street dress, organdie trimmed, and embroidered collar, that she can wear on the street until November, and then be dressed up for her own husband in the afternoon all Winter for the nominal price of $1.50, will bring a thousand women to my sale. These are dear little dresses and we have all sizes from 16 to 48. They come in pinks, blues, lavenders and other wanted colors, and if I did not feel that giving them away at this ridiculous price would serve as an advertisement, we certainly would rather have the dresses than your money. If you come too late don't scold me, for I am a stranger in your city.

A SHIRT SALE FOR MEN ONLY

(None Sold to Women)

Saturday morning, continuing until the store closes at one o'clock, 77c Each

I will sell Men's Negligee Shirts, at 2 for 1.50

Limit 4 shirts to one buyer. I am doing this to get the men interested in my sale; in other words, I do it to advertise among the men. This is not a misprint, nor a Lockhart joke—these shirts will not be sold to women. No excuse or smooth talk will change our positive statement, THAT THESE SHIRTS WILL BE SOLD TO MEN ONLY. They will stand out in the eyes of Boston men as a great investment in the face of this high market. Great tables will groan under the load that will be heaped on them, ample tables will be used so that busy men will find little delay in getting waited on. Soft cuffs, long tails, big roomy arm holes, full sized neck bands; in fact, these are regular shirts that will go like hot cakes at this cut price.

The colors are foxy stripes that will please particular men. Sizes 14 to 17. Enough said.

MITCHELL AND OWENS CLASH IN C.A.C. RING

Little Whirlwinds Will Traverse Ten-Round Route—Frankie Ryan vs. Young Strona

CARD AT COMMERCIAL A. C.

Main event—Paddy Owens of Cambridge vs. Charley Mitchell of Braintree, ten rounds.

Second ten-round bout—Dave Powers of Malden vs. Jack Veto of Chelsea.

First ten-round bout — Young Strona of New Bedford vs. Frankie Ryan of New York.

Curtain Raiser—Johnny Fay of the North End vs. Battling Hurley of the Norths End, six rounds.

Referee—Larry Conley.

Starting time—8 P. M.

By RINGSIDE

Charley Mitchell of Braintree, and Paddy Owens, Battle pride of Cambridge, two classy 118-pound battlers, come together in the final bout on the snappy appearing card at the Commercial A. C. tonight.

The two kids met a short time ago at Lowell. Owens winning the verdict. Mitchell wasn't satisfied with the call, so just to prove it was no fluke, Paddy agreed to "do the same thing over again."

Owens, as his friends claim, is a much improved boy since his last start before local fans. He was operating a trifle too frequently for a youth of his build and sensibly took a lay-off.

The rest apparently enabled him to get his strength back, as he surely must have been "right" to win from the rugged Mitchell. If Mitchell were a trifle more aggressive he'd be able to wade through a lot of the talent gathering in good money.

Frankie Ryan and Young Strona, who will also step the ten round route, are two strangers to Boston fans. They come well touted, though, and, according to all accounts, are able to take care of themselves in fast company.

Ryan has a kayo to his credit over Chick Simier, besides going to a draw in another encounter with the Pennsylvanian. He also claims he was as good as Shamus O'Brien at the conclusion of their several setos.

Dave Powers, veteran Malden blonde, tackles a stiff proposition in Jack Veto, hardhitting Chelsea lad. While Vito hasn't been in professional ranks very long, he certainly can shoot.

Two North Enders, Johnny Fay and Battling Hurley, meet in the opening bout.

* * *

Frankie (Young) Britt of New Bedford, that little 130-pounder who always delivers, meets Young Terry McGovern of Philadelphia in the windup event at the Crescent A. C. of Lowell tonight.

In the preliminaries George Brooks and Tommy Flannagan, Charley Parker and Frankie Chaney and Kid Lee and Johnny Gray will entertain.

FINALLY WORK AROUND TO IDEA OF SLOSSON'S

George Slosson, who will be a contestant in the 18.2 championship balk line tournament in November, has endorsed the plan of the coming National pocket billiard tournament, as advocated by the National Advisory Board.

Slosson states that a long time ago he advocated a like plan for all the cue games. Every State will be represented. The rules provide that each State be divided into ten districts, the players in each district playing for the State championship. The States are divided into eleven districts.

RAY CALDWELL TREATS FOHLS AS HE DID SOX

Ray Caldwell helped win his own game against the Indians by punching out a single just before Gilhooley tripled. Lamar's infield out sent Little Frank over with what proved to be the winning tally. The Indians kept pecking away, but the best they could do was to swell a 3-0 score to 3-2. Graney and O'Neill did the best hitting for the Fohls.

JOE BUSH HEADED TO LINEUP WITH MARINES

Bullet Joe Bush, Red Sox' crack right-hander, plans following Eddie Collins into the marines. He worked at the Millvale, Pa., steel works last Winter, but is out to do his bit on a more elaborate scale and will join the Devil Dogs as soon as the certain goes down on the baseball season, providing he's able to enlist. Otherwise he hopes his draft board will call him.

E. COLLINS MAKES LAST PLAY IN HIS LAST GAME

It happened that Eddie Collins, off to join the Marines, started the last play in the game between the rival sox. It was a spicy assist off Scott. After throwing out Everett, Collins ran over and got the ball from Gandil, shoving it into his hip pocket.

Yes, Eddie will fool Jandom if he doesn't have the ball raffled off for one of the war charities.

Corbett's Corner

By JAMES J. CORBETT.

The youngster who aspires to star in the major leagues must make good before he is beyond the voting age. After twenty-one the chances are against him. Baseball history shows that only in rare instances have "rookies" beyond twenty-one been able to linger permanently under the big tent. Practically every outstanding player of the present generation jumped into major league harness before he was twenty-one.

Ty Cobb, born in 1886, became a Tiger regular in 1905. Rogers Hornsby, ranked now as the greatest youthful infielder in the National League, was only eighteen when the Cardinals smeared him.

Rabbit Maranville, born in Fall of 1892, became a Brave regular twenty years later. Heinie Groh, one of the greatest third basemen in the game today, made good at twenty. Tris Speaker was twenty when he got his chance with the Red Sox.

Three members of Connie Mack's great $100,000 infield were big leaguers before they were twenty-one. Eddie Collins was nineteen when Connie Mack grabbed him; Stuffy McInnis was twenty and so was Jack Barry. Frank Baker, the fourth member of the great Athletic quartet, became a major leaguer at twenty-three.

Napoleon Lajoie, who ever will rank as one of the most remarkable players that ever stepped on a ball field, was only twenty when the Phillies bought him on August 13, 1896, from Fall River.

Johnny Evers joined the Cubs at the age of nineteen. Sam Crawford was nineteen when he became a Red in 1899. Clyde Milan joined the Senators when he was twenty.

George Sisler, born in 1893, joined the Pirates in 1913. Frank Snyder, the Cardinal catcher, was twenty when he broke into big leagues. Amos Strunk, outfielder, was twenty-one when he joined the tribe of Connie Mack.

Hans Wagner was twenty-three when he got his first—and only—big league chance. Eddie Plank was twenty-six. Hans Lobert twenty-four, Bill Killifer twenty-three, Grover Alexander twenty-four, Dode Paskert twenty-six, Charlie Herzog twenty-three and George Burns twenty-three.

But, in the main, baseball history shows that the rusher who can't stand the big league test by the time he is twenty-one has but a small chance to "make good" afterward.

STARS GOT EARLY START.

Jimmie Archer, the great Cub catcher, was twenty-one when he donned big league spangles.

Roger Peckinpaugh, the brilliant Yankee shortstop, was twenty-one when he got his first major league chance. Max Carey, of the Pirates, became a big leaguer at twenty-one. So did Ray Chapman, the wonderful Indian shortstop.

Heinie Zimmerman was twenty when he became a Cub in 1907, and Joe Jackson got his big league chance when he was less than twenty-one. Ray Schalk started with the White Sox at the age of twenty. Eddie Roush, born in 1893, made good with the Federals in 1913. "Happy" Felsch, the White Sox outfielder, became a big leaguer at twenty.

SAME WITH PITCHERS.

Christy Mathewson, born in 1880, began his career with the Giants in 1900. "Smoky Joe" Wood was twenty when he joined that team. Babe Ruth, the great Boston southpaw, was twenty when he "landed."

Ferdinand Schupp was twenty-one when John McGraw decided that he had enough ability to warrant his retention. Babe Benton was twenty when he joined that team. Eddie Cicotte was twenty-one when he made good as a major leaguer. Al Mamaux was twenty when the Pirates secured him. Guy Morton of the Indians, was twenty-one, and Eppa Rixey was twenty-one.

Of course, there are a few exceptions to this general rule.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 16.—It's been many days since we've seen Startling toddling home in front, so when the game little hoss performed the feat in the Catskill Selling Stake there was quite some Jubilation.

Bill Roper Slated to Return to Princeton as Gridiron Tutor

New York, Aug. 16.—Bill Roper, coach of the last championship football team at Princeton University, will return to Tigertown this Fall as head gridiron mentor, according to report in athletic circles.

Speedy Rush is said to be too busily engaged in war work in West Virginia to take up where he left off two seasons ago.

Since severing his connection with Princeton, four years ago Roper has acted as coach of the Swarthmore College eleven.

BUSH GOES TO MOUND TODAY

Bullet Joe Slated to Twirl Final Against Alabaster Hose—Carl Mays Drubbed

By NICK FLATLEY.

The drive toward the American League pennant continues just the same as ever, thought both principal drivers spent yesterday afternoon getting walloped.

The Red Sox, with Carl Mays at the helm, fell before their alabaster hosed rivals, 6-2, while the contending Cleveland Indians went down before the troublesome Yankees, 3-2.

All this leaves the local Sox lead still at two games, and the ultimate result, as well as any world's series, as much in doubt as ever. There hasn't been a whisper of series arrangements, hereabouts or anywhere else, since the "repudiation" meeting of the magnates out in Cleveland.

Most of the regular guys in the game are collating, or preparing to step out as soon as the Labor Day games are played. And, it might be mentioned, there are plenty of regular guys on both leading teams.

Here is the way one player put it up to us:

"Baseball is our livelihood. We play the game, because we make more money that way than we could otherwise. We like to collect all we can, but at the same time we know that the country is at war and that sport is secondary.

"We might get $1,000 or so by sticking and playing a world's series. But the government has declared we should quit after September 1. Our reputations, and the reputation of our game, is at stake. We are ready and glad to pass up what little extra money we could get.

"Getting that money would help right now, but it wouldn't do a bit of good later on, either to us or the game. We have enough put aside to forget the big contracts and bonuses and extras. And we know it will help us out in the long run."

That is the player angle. The players have been shown up in a bad light, perhaps, because their living depends on publicity. There are as many "unwilling" fighters in every business as there are in baseball. But the light of publicity just naturally centres on the national sport. And, while it does, the participants therein have to suffer.

Joe Bush was down to oppose Eddie Cicotte in today's game. It ends the series. Tomorrow Cleveland.

SWIMMER TOTH TO GO AFTER ONE-MILE TITLE

Charles Toth of the L street bathhouse, who has won country-wide fame as a long-distance swimmer, has entered the National championships to be held on the Delaware River, Philadelphia, August 24, and is confident he will annex the one-mile title.

The South Boston boy is being trained by John J. Bray, Jr., who has brought out many of the local swimming stars. A big delegation of members of the L street baths plan making the trip to Philadelphia with Toth and Bray.

BRAVES IN TWIN BILL WITH CLAN OF HENDRICKS

St. Louis, Aug. 16.—The Boston Braves, who have been barn-storming all week, were billed to open a two-day stand here today. The menu: Two games today and one tomorrow.

Dick Rudolph and Art Nehf were carded to mount the hillock for the Braves today.

The Boston athletes bumped into a strong little b'gosh outfit over at Massillon, O., yesterday and came to grief, 3 to 2, much to the delight of just about the biggest throng they have gazed at in quite a long time. George and Northrop were the pitchers used by Stallings. All the scoring was done off the former.

A lanky juvenile named Lingrel baffled the Braves at such times as hits meant runs. Taggert's homer and the fielding of Herzog and Sweeney featured. The score:

| | | | | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Braves | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 2 |
| Massillon | 3 | 0 | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 3 |

EDDIE COLLINS LEAVES TO JOIN DEVIL DOGS

Eddie Collins, White Sox captain and modern keystone king, has played his last game of big league ball until the war is won. He left for his home at Philadelphia right after the matinee at Fenway Park and is headed to join the Devil Dogs. Collins put up a whirlwind, all-round performance. He found Mays in the pinch, stole second on Schang and played his usual sharp game in the field.

Johnny Mostil, a Chicago semi-pro, was slated to be on second for the Rowlands in today's getaway battle with the Red Sox. Rowland is strong for the Kid and is confident he is going to make a pretty good substitute for Columbia Eddie.

15-YEAR-OLDER IS SENSATION AT LONGWOOD

Vincent Richards, sensational fifteen-year-old New York schoolboy, and W. T. Tilden, are finalists in the National tennis doubles, at Longwood. They got themselves there by defeating "Nat" Niles and Theodore R. Pell, two brilliant veterans, in the first match in the semi-final round.

This afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock, Fred R. Alexander and Beals C. Wright, stars of the first magnitude, and Hayes and Burdick, Western wizards, were to clash. The winners of this encounter play Richards and Tilden in the final round, tomorrow.

Richards and Tilden made up in their speed and skill what they lacked in experience in registering their glistening triumph over Niles and Pell. The scores were 7-5, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Play in the mixed doubles was to be started right after the Alexander-Wright and Hayes-Burdick match.

VIC LINART KEEPS IT UP AND WINS BIG RACE

Victor Linart, crack Belgian rider, gained additional honors for himself at the Revere cycle track when he finished first in the Revenge Golden Wheel race, at fifty miles. Frank Corry got an ugly spill, just when his admirers were looking for him to take the lead and dethrone Linart. He was cut about the face and his left hand was slightly fractured.

Vincent Madonna finished second, being beaten four laps by Linart. George Wiley was third. Pat Logan won the five-mile race from Ned Chandler by a narrow margin. Another big crowd saw the sport and the big event was replete with thrills.

Will You Co-operate With Uncle Sam and Us?

When Uncle Sam took over all the wool, he looked around to see how much would be required for civilian clothing and found enough cloth and clothes on hand to take care of normal needs for some time. So the weaving of civilian woolens ceased and present stocks must be conserved.

If people will buy only what clothes they need for immediate use, there will be plenty for all. Of course the wise thing to do is to buy the best you can afford. There's more economy and satisfaction in such clothes, anyway, and you won't have to buy again so soon.

We realize that our large, high-grade, attractive stock and our exceptionally low prices are a great temptation to a man to stock up for the future. But we trust that our customers will be patriotic enough to play fair — to co-operate — to buy only what they actually need.

With such co-operation, we are already in a position to take good care of our customers for the next twelve months—not only with plenty of clothes, but at lower prices than any other store will ask, as well.

THE WAR MARRIAGE

By Beatrice Fairfax

Every Girl, She Says, Should Look Well Into Her Heart Before She Allows Herself to Wed on an Impulse

LOOKED at from any angle, there is no denying the grim note about war marriages. There is the thrilling background of war, the blare of military bands, the fluttering of flags, the marching and counter-marching of soldiers; these things cry out to instincts as old as man.

They draw hearts together in a spirit of consecration. The ceremony becomes one of "for God and country" rather than the simple mating of a boy and girl in love.

But this sort of ceremony demands stouter hearts than the simple fireside romance with its delightful paraphernalia of trousseau, gifts, home-making, and all the spoiling and pampering that starts the young people on life's great adventure.

In considering war weddings one feels inclined to think that some conviction deeper than the usual love story must be back of these stark ceremonies. At least, our vital statistics record that 50,000 more marriages than usual have been made during the past year.

Reflecting on these figures, one is almost inclined to believe that some truer instinct, something akin to divine inspiration, has warned these young people that out of the human wreckage into which war has plunged the race comes the deathless cry that life must survive.

This cry has hung out above the din of battle to the woman on whom the burden of war falls heaviest—the burden of suspense.

It is the girl who always decides on the war marriage. In the face of the unknown future, she is more courageous than her soldier.

And with the frankness that is becoming characteristic of the modern women, she decides if the man she loves must take his chance of life and death for the greatest of human causes, the one thing that could make the loneliness and suspense endurable would be the rearing of his child.

Being a creature of inspiration—divine inspiration it would seem at times—her vision goes beyond the practical reckoning of dollars and cents. The colossal scope of the thing—a world-war in which her man is taking part—urges her on to assume any burdens, his return an enfeebled wreck, and the probable care of a child.

Nothing Too Great

Nothing is too great for her strength, if only she can help a little.

But should this instinctive capacity for sacrifice be taken advantage of, without a corresponding measure of resource for her to fall back upon?

If life were only simpler, and love and sentiment filled the place of sordid cash considerations, we'd all rise and sing "The Star Spangled Banner" as the soldier and his bride walk to plight their marriage vows. But alas, life is not simple, and in spite of commissions, investigations and other legal measures, the cost of keeping body and soul together mounts day by day.

And we are driven to the conclusion that war marriage presents almost as many different questions as there are couples. Questions that are beyond the control of the soldier and his bride, and little questions that bear upon a future that one of them may not survive to share.

Money is, of course, the great solvent of the war romance. It is cruel at such a time, when these splendid lads are going away in the full glory of their young manhood, to tell them to wait and run their chance of coming home battered wrecks before marrying the girls of their choice.

But when a war marriage might create grave responsibilities that in all probability may survive the soldier, what else is there to say?

Inherited Money

If there is no inherited money in the family to enable the young couple to marry, the next question to be estimated is the qualifications of the girl as a wage-earner.

Time and again, I have had communications from girls willing and eager to take any risk, to assume any burden, when the first glance at their letters would make one question their ability to even look after themselves.

Not every woman may assume the heroic role of being the mother of a war baby, or caring for some pitiful bit of human wreckage, when he returns from "over there."

This is the privilege of the special, of the self-supporting girl who has intelligence, skill and ability to make a good living. Such a woman is in the financially independent class, and here is the privilege of choosing her own fate.

But for the girl who barely scrapes along on meagre wages and who has nothing to fall back upon in the way of special training, the risk of a war marriage is a risk indeed.

The next thing to be considered is the attitude of the girl's family, of the soldier's family, and if they are willing—and able—to help. The assistance of a family of either would pre-suppose them to be people of means, and highly favorable to the match.

For no honorable man could expect or endure the thought that poor old people were again forced to put their heads into the yoke for wife or child of his.

And no stress of feeling, nor torn hearts facing eternal separation justifies the selfishness of forcing poor old people to make over again the sacrifices they made to rear their own children. Even if they should agree to give up the comforts their industry has achieved to make more tolerable the evening of life, no young girl of decent principles are justified in seeking their happiness at such a cost.

The intuition of the woman in regard to the war marriage is right; it is the conserving force, speaking through the maternal instinct. But from this potential sacrifice she must be shielded, unless she has money, or talent, or the ability to earn that puts her in the independent class.

CHAPTER XXIX.—(Continued.)

ELIZABETH WADE, standing in the kitchen, heard all this speech.

Butler was going to be alone with Clifford Chapin, and she could do nothing to prevent it.

"Good-bye!" she heard him says as he shook hands with his father and kissed his mother. "I'll write soon."

A moment later she heard the whirr of the motor at the gate. Then silence.

She knew that John Butler and Clifford Chapin had gone away together.

Are you coming out on the front porch, dear?"

Elizabeth started nervously at the sound of Mrs. Chapin's voice in the door of the kitchen.

"Oh, I'm so sorry" the matron added, suddenly remembering that Elizabeth had not assisted at the departure of the son of the house—"Clifford's gone, and you never told him 'Good-by'!"

The girl smiled. "You mean he never told me 'Good-by'" she corrected, coming out into the hall.

She immediately regretted her words, for she saw that the devoted mother feared her son's negligence and hurt this young thing.

"That's too bad," Mrs. Chapin soothed. "I guess he was so full of getting off that he never thought a thing about it. No doubt he'll send some message back by Mr. Butler."

Elizabeth smiled again. "You must not suppose that I mind, dear Mrs. Chapin," she said. "To tell the truth, I stayed in the kitchen on purpose. When people who love one another are parting, strangers are best out of the way. I know I do not want anybody around when I have to say good-by to my dear brother."

Mrs. Chapin gasped, then laughed. "I declare!" she exclaimed. "I've been so careful lately not to mention your brother that I was actually scared when you spoke of him. "I forgot there wasn't anybody around but you and me—and I—as Amos Chapin appeared in the doorway.

"What's that you're talking about?" he queried.

The wife explained, adding: "Mr. Butler's always on hand lately, so that I've got out of the habit of talking about Dr. Wade. But I don't think he suspects a thing."

"Your son does," Elizabeth informed her gravely. "He told me he did."

Amos looked startled. "Cliff told you that—did he?"

"Yes," she answered, moving toward the stairs. "I think I will go up to bed now, if you will excuse me. I am tired, and it's getting late."

"Wait!" Amos detained her. His eyes betrayed anxiety. "What did Cliff say?"

"Oh," with assumed indifference, "he did not say very much. He was evidently under the impression that my brother had no right to send me here to board. He said something to the effect that I ought to be ashamed of his actions—or mine—I don't remember which. It occurred to me that Douglas would hardly be pleased by your son's attitude."

She was watching the farmer as she talked, noting the effect of her remarks. Had she wished to cause him discomfort, she would have been abundantly satisfied with the results obtained.

Amos flushed angrily, then paled slightly.

"Cliff talks like a fool sometimes!" he burst forth. "I wish he'd mind his own affairs!"

"Oh, pa!" Mrs. Chapin pleaded tremulously. "How can you speak so of the boy, and when he's just gone away, too?"

FOR USE IN CANNING

1. A safe measure for jelly making is three parts of sugar to four parts of juice.

2. Sugar should always be slightly heated before added to fruit.

3. In applying paraffin, pour it over jams and jellies while it is at the boiling point. This will prevent mold and fermentation later.

4. Sterilize glasses in boiling water before putting the jelly in them.

5. If the tin covers of the glasses are not in good condition they should be lacquered before being used the second time.

The paraffin paper cups now on the market are excellent for storing jellies and jams where they can be kept in a cool, dry place.

FOR CANNING.

1. Fruits must be fresh cleaned and preserved while they are firm, and before they are over-ripe.

2. Sterilize the jars in boiling water. Drain them thoroughly, and add the fruit immediately. Screw the tops on securely, and turn all the jars upside down; leave them in this position until you are certain that they are airtight.

3. The strength of the rubber bands used on the jars must be carefully tested by stretching them slightly; only those in good condition may be used. It is better to get new rubbers each season.

4 Jar covers must be perfect; those with rough edges should be discarded.

5. Small quantities of both vegetables and fruits are easiest to handle at one time, as the results are apt to be more uniformly good.

Why Automobiling Causes People to Lose Their Hair

More men and women are losing their hair today than ever before, and the cause is one bad effect of automobiling. They stir up a terrible lot of dust, and in the dust are all sorts of microbes and germs. These settle upon the hair and thus lodge in the scalp, thus setting up a diseased condition that works its way down to the hair roots. Then the hair begins to fall out. There is only one remedy, and that is frequent washing with Birt's Head Wash. Ordinary soaps and shampoos are positively injurious, because they contain an excess of alkali, and alkali has a deadly effect on the hair. Birt's Head Wash is made of neutral soap, scientifically combined with Glycerin, White of Eggs, Cocoanut Oil and a small quantity of Salicylic Acid, to destroy germs and remove disagreeable odors.—Advertisement.

Cadum Ointment is good for eczema, pimples, blotches, itch, tetter, scaly skin, eruptions, chafings, piles, rash, sores, scabs, ringworm, cuts, insect bites, etc.

A Visit From Polyphemus

THE AMERICAN SILKMAKER CALLS

By Garrett P. Serviss

I HAVE a low-cut, tree-shaded window looking west, near which I write, and one afternoon during the first half of July I was startled on happening to glance at the bottom of the under sash to see, projecting above the lower edge of the glass pane, on the outside, a pair of organs shaped like long toothed, two-edged combs, and between them a black head to which they evidently appertained.

The thing was not as large as a cat, or even a kitten, and yet, for some subjective reason, perhaps because my imagination had been wrought up by what I was working over—the sight shocked me with a sense of something monstrous about it.

However, I got up and went close to the window. Then I saw that the object was a huge insect, evidently of the moth family, although its great wings, but little short of half a foot in combined spread (as I afterward found out), were held erect and meeting over its back, which is good form for a butterfly, but not for a moth.

Having by habit my pockets and desk drawers always well supplied with a variety of magnifying glasses, I now took out half a dozen of these, and crouching upon a lounge right under the window, I got my nose against the glass, and my lenses close to the big head, and looked fairly into the monster's eyes—for now he did appear a monster indeed.

When, with the transforming magic of the highest-powered lens that would focus through the window-pane, I had placed that insect dinosaur before my diminished self, as if I had fallen through a hole in time back into the Jurassic age, I felt the terror that on any of these bright Summer days may spring up in some little glade in the lawn grass where an incautious fly suddenly confronts a hunting spider.

Then I threw off the spell and set to work to find out who and what my strange visiter was. Many long years have passed since, as a boy entomologist in the country, I filled too-soon-forgotten pill boxes with insect specimens, and now I had to get out my books and compare pictures and descriptions with the big fellow outside the window before I became certain that his name was Polyphemus (derived from the one-eyed giant of the Odyssey).

I now lost all my weird-up fear of him, cautiously opened the window, took his big wings between my fingers and brought him inside. He showed no teeth and made no resistance, but obligingly opened wide his wings, so that I could see the beauty of their upper markings, and especially the curious, eye-like, transparent spot on each wing.

The Polyphemus moth is a near relative of an even more gigantic moth in China, the Attacus Atlas. It belongs to the Saturnian genus, all the families of which are silk weavers. Its caterpillar, which is the actual weaver, lives by preference on the ailanthus tree, now common around New York and elsewhere in America, although of Chinese origin. But it also lives on willows, oaks, elms, birches and maples. It is from the big cocoons of strong silk spun by the green, gold-striped caterpillars of Polyphemus that the moths are born, the cocoons being their silken cradle.

Some twenty or thirty years ago great hopes were entertained of making the American silk worm a splendid industrial success. But although the silk is said to be stronger than that of the common silk-worm, which also originated in China, it is coarser, and there have been difficulties in spinning and carding it.

However, Polyphemus still bears the distinction bestowed by his one-time renown as the American silk maker.

A Thrilling Story of an American Girl and German Intrigue in This Country

CHAPTER X.

VAN TEYL as he hastened forward to meet his friend, presented at first sight a very good type of the well-groomed, athletic young American. He was over six feet tall, with smooth, dark hair brushed back from his forehead, a strong, clean-shaven face and good features. Only, as he drew nearer, there was evident a slight, unnatural quivering at the corner of his lips. The cordiality of his greeting, too, was a little overdone.

"Welcome home, Fischer! Why, man, you're looking fine. Had a pleasant voyage?"

"Storms for the first few days—after that all right," Fischer replied.

"Any submarines?"

"Not a sight of one. Seen your sister yet?"

"Not yet. I've been waiting about for a telephone message. She hadn't arrived a few minutes ago."

Fischer frowned.

"I want us three to meet—you and she and I—the first moment she sets foot in the hotel," he declared.

"What's the hurry?" Van Teyl demanded. "You must have seen plenty of her the last ten days."

"That," Fischer insisted, "was a different matter. See here, Jimmy, I'll be frank with you."

He walked to the door of the bedroom, opened it, and looked inside. Its sole occupant was Nikasti, who was at the far end, putting away some clothes. Fischer closed the door firmly and returned.

"I want you to understand this, James," he began. "Your sister is meddling in certain things she'd best leave alone."

Van Teyl lit a cigarette.

"No use telling me to me," he observed. "Pamela's her own mistress, and she's gone her own way ever since she came of age."

"She's got to quit," Fischer pronounced. "That's all there is about it. You and I will have to talk this out. Where are you dining?"

"Downstairs," Van Teyl replied gloomily. "I was thinking of waiting for Pamela."

"You leave word to have your people let you know directly when she arrives," Fischer advised, "and come along with me."

Van Teyl allowed himself to be led towards the door. Nikasti, with a dun sense of his new duties, glided past them, rang for the lift, and watched them descend. Fischer turned at once towards the dining room.

"Thank God we're in a civilized country," he observed, "and that I don't have to change when I don't want to!"

They found a quiet table, and Fischer, displaying much interest in the menu, ordered a somewhat extensive dinner.

"Grapefruit and Maryland chicken are worth coming back to," he declared. "Now see here, James, let's get to business. You've got to help me with your sister."

"But how?" Van Teyl demanded. "Pamela and I are good pals, of course, but she has a will of her own in all she does, and I don't fancy that anything I could say would influence her very much."

"There are two things about your sister," Fischer continued. "The first is that she's got to quit this secret service business she's got herself mixed up in."

"Don't talk nonsense!" Van Teyl exclaimed. "Pamela doesn't care a fig about politics!"

STARS OF STAGE AMUSE WAR WOUNDED

Pretty Girls, too, Take Part in Entertainment at Marine Hospital

Smiles, tears and laughter were mixed together at the entertainment given by larger part of the cast of "Head Over Heels," now playing at the Tremont Theatre, at the Marine Hospital in Chelsea, for the sick and wounded sailors and marines.

The "Devil Dogs" and the jackies furnished the laughter and the entertainers the tears. And they were not stage tears that were shed. Handkerchiefs were in evidence in the hands of the actresses whenever they happened to catch sight of a maimed fighter.

Although Mitzi was unable to be present, a score of pretty girls headed by Robert Emmett Keane and Irving Beebe, together with Charlie Purcell, star of "Maytime," furnished the boys the liveliest afternoon they had spent in many a long, weary day.

THREE HUNDRED ENTERTAINED.

About three hundred sick and wounded fighters crowded the Red Cross headquarters. Men on crutches with one leg missing, and men in wheel-chairs with no legs at all somehow managed to squeeze into the audience.

Miss Gertrude Dallas, prima donna of the company, opened the program with "Keep Smiling." And the manner in which the wounded men applauded assured her that they would keep smiling, no matter what happened.

Next came Joe Dunn, James Oliver, Edward Matthews, and Andy Bennett, known as the "Runaway Four." The name was appropriated as they literally ran away with the audience, with their songs, dances, and flashes of comedy.

PRETTY GIRLS, TOO.

Irving Beebe and his flock of pretty girls kept the audience highly amused for the next half hour.

The real stars of the afternoon were Robert Keane of "Head Over Heels" and Charlie Purcell of "Maytime." They sang songs, both serious and funny, and amused the boys with tales of the war zone.

The finale of "Head Over Heels," including the entire cast, served for a conclusion.

Following the entertainment, the girls visited and shook hands with the wounded men, each one of whom declared he had enjoyed himself more than at any time since the return from France.

MOTORISTS STILL DEFY ANTI-GLARING LIGHTS LAW

By C. F. DONNOCKER

The glaring headlight nuisance does not seem to be abated and the Summer season is drawing to a close. Not only do some motorists take no care at all of their headlights, but some even drive at night with only one lamp. This is a direct violation of the headlight law, glaring or no glaring, and is a practice that should be stopped immediately. It is impossible to tell whether the approaching vehicle is a motorcycle or an automobile and serious accidents can hardly be avoided.

The police in some parts of Greater Boston and suburbs have evidently been instructed to pay particular attention to the law pertaining to the blowing of horns, and the officers are holding up motorists every night because they neglect to blow their horns at the crossings. If this can be done so effectually, the same motorists can be held up for violating the headlight ordnance, and it will take little more effort on the part of the police.

Between the activity of the police and the co-operation of drivers in sending in the registration numbers of offending motorists, it would not take long to stamp out the glaring headlight nuisance, and night driving would be relieved of some of its dangers, which are needless.

FIVE INJURED IN AUTO CRASH; DRIVER IS HELD

In an automobile crash at Adams and Thomas streets, East Milton, five young men were slightly injured and five others escaped unhurt. John W. Sullivan, of 24 Wallingford road, Brighton, was arrested on a charge of operating a machine under the influence of liquor. The Milton police refused him bail.

Four young men were in Sullivan's machine when it struck a machine owned by the Projector Garage of East Milton, but they made off.

In the garage machine were Alexander Howie, Jr., of 586 Adams street, East Milton, the driver; Thomas Anderson of Brooks street; Prescott Skinner of Boulevard street; William Hodges of Adams street, and John Kerr of Granite place, East Milton.

The Sullivan machine struck the left mudguard of the garage machine, and a stone wall. Anderson was thrown out, landing on his head. He was unconscious and was treated by a physician. Kerr was thrown out and received a severe shaking up.

EAST BOSTON BAKERY IS ORDERED CLOSED

The bakery of Floccher & Co., No. 372 Sumner street, East Boston, has been ordered closed by the Massachusetts Food Administration for "making applications for sugar containing false statements," says a statement issued by the Food Administrator.

"Through the use of food certificates they obtained large quantities of sugar, to which they were not entitled, which they sold in East Boston.

"They were also found guilty of baking bread with insufficient amount of substitutes and making false reports regarding same."

FINED FOR VIOLATING CHILD LABOR LAW

Joseph Bloom, No. 120 Chelsea street, and Isaac Zarifi Co., No. 17 Winnisimmet street, Chelsea, were fined $10 each in the Chelsea Court for employing minors in sorting rags.

It was shown that children under 14 are being hired in Chelsea to sort rags, and that they are paid 3 cents a pound. The weekly wages are about $1.75. The State Board of Labor and Industries started an investigation relative to the matter after several complaints had been filed.

NUXATED IRON

"To help make strong, lean, red-blooded Americans there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. Nuxated Iron often increases the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, run-down people in two weeks' time. It is now being used by over three million people annually, including such men as Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, formerly Secretary of the Treasury; Hon. Frank O. Lowden, governor of Iowa; former United States Senator Richard Rolland Kenney of Delaware, at present Major of the U. S. Army; General John L. Clem (Retired), the drummer boy of Shiloh, who was sergeant in the U. S. Army when only 12 years of age; also United States Judge W. M. Kinney of the Court of Claims of Washington and others. Nuxated Iron is dispensed by all good druggists everywhere.

12TH DIVISION TRAINING WILL BE RUSHED

Short and Intensive Period at Devens, Says Colonel Dockery

Camp Devens, Aug. 16.—The new 12th Division will undergo the speediest and most rigorous course of training yet staged, according to statements of Colonel Oliver H. Dockery, Jr., of the American General Staff, now assistant chief of staff of the 12th Division here.

"I do not know who the new division commander will be nor what the policy of training will be," said Colonel Dockery," but I do know that the training will be for a much shorter and more intensive period, so that the component parts of the new division may be moulded into shape in the fewest possible months consistent with safe and efficient training to fit them to take their places along with the other divisions in France.

"The chief keynotes of the 12th Division will be 'haste and strenuousness,' work without any frills, with everyone's shoulder to the wheel, including the commander's at the head."

Colonel Dockery was emphatic that in so far as the new division was concerned "politics is adjourned."

He stated that the new division commander would announce his own regulations regarding the release of news from the camp. He said Camp Devens impressed him most favorably as a healthy location. He expressed surprise at the heat, saying it reminded him of Texas.

Colonel Dockery comes here from Camp Custer, Michigan, where he was attached to the 160th Depot Brigade.

The third set of non-commissioned officers and privates to leave for officers' training schools is en route to Camp Hancock, Ga., to attend the central machine gun officers' school and will report to the commanding officer tomorrow.

Those chosen as candidates to be commissioned second lieutenants are: Sergeant Oliver Wendell Sergeant, Joseph C. Bannon, Waterbury, Conn.; Private Harold Clark, Portland, Me.; Private Harry B. Sadler, Worcester; Sergeant Alvin W. Gray, Springfield; Sergeant Eugene Miller, Cook Eugene M. Foss, Hartford, Conn.; Sergeant Ernest N. Daigneau, Auburn; Corporal Ward W. Hogue, Niagara Falls; Corporal Edward F. Morgan, Dorchester; Corporal Michael F. Coyne, Manchester, N. H.; Private Irena Alexander Morgan has been sent from the school for bakers and cooks to the same camp.

Sergeant Wilbur E. Stone, Chicago, Ill.; Sergeant Thomas F. Maguire, Dorchester; Private Warren White, Lowell; Sergeant Benjamin M. Manheim, Boston, and Sergeant Frederick P. Salaman, Worcester.

The men were chosen from the depot brigade, quartermasters' corps, motor truck company and medical department base hospital.

Captain Langdon S. Simons, 74th Infantry, has been transferred to the officers' training school at Camp Lee as an instructor. Lieutenant Alexander Morgan has been sent from the school for bakers and cooks to the same camp.

Captain Fred W. Moore, in charge of the Intelligence Department of the Northeast and formerly graduate treasurer of Harvard athletics, has been advanced to the rank of major.

He was graduated from Harvard University in 1893 and from the Law School in 1896, and came to the Department of the Northeast at the suggestion of Colonel Robert L. Howze, then chief of staff, who put him in charge of the Intelligence Department.

Since then this department, under his direction, has been greatly enlarged and will have more spacious quarters assigned to it.

Major Moore was born in Independence, Iowa, came to Boston when a child and has lived in this locality nearly all his life.

FRED W. MOORE, formerly graduate treasurer of Harvard athletics, who has been advanced to rank of major.

FOOD PROTEST AT RADIO SCHOOL

By S. HARRY FERRIS.

U. S. Naval Radio School, Cambridge, Aug. 16.—Old Harvard men would rather recognize the University of war-time days with its thousands of Radio students, the marching columns, the bands playing, in place of the sombre-coated straggling lines of spectacled youth of other days.

There is one feature of life, however, than any Harvard alumnus of the last twenty-five years, would promptly recognize.

The University life of the old days would have lacked in savor if it had not had its kicks about the food at Memorial Hall. Usually these protests began and ended with wordy condemnations. Occasionally, however the big dining room at Memorial became the scene of a riot in which crockery and silverware were thrown about freely.

But the same old kick went on from year to year.

And the radio boys are making the familiar kick today.

The Radio School culinary arrangements differ from those in other departments of the navy in that the food is not directly supplied by the Navy Department, but by a contractor.

The government is able to buy all of its food supplies at a much cheaper price than civilians on account of the immense quantities consumed, and for this reason, perhaps, a kick in the naval forces over "chow" is practically unknown.

The matter has been referred to Rear Admiral Spencer S. Wood, commandant of the First Naval District, who has started the wheels in motion for an investigation.

The boys of the Radio School baseball nine are preparing to administer a warm defeat to their old rivals in diamond honors, the boys from the Receiving Ship at Commonwealth Pier, Saturday.

One of the students of the school who will play every day after day attending lectures and trying to acquire the theory and theory of the buzzer is S. L. Fess, a son of Simeon Fess, a Congressman from Ohio.

Ensign Harris is announced of Joseph J. Reynolds, one of the Somerville boys at the Radio School, at Mine Harbor, Charlotte I. Weld, No. 77 Huron avenue, Somerville.

Camp Corey Closes

Camp Corey, the Malden Y. M. C. A. camp at North Reading, has closed, after a season of six weeks.

Y.M.C.A. HUT IS DEDICATED AT DEVENS

Camp Devens, Ayer, Aug. 16.—Hut 10 of the Y. M. C. A., located near the barracks of the 73d Infantry and the gift of the pupils and alumnae of Miss Sarah Porter's school at Farmington, Ct., has been dedicated and opened for the use of the boys.

The new building cost $13,000, and will be under the direction of Dr. Ellsworth G. Lancaster as secretary.

Several residents of Farmington and graduates of the school interested in the Y. M. C. A. work attended the dedication exercises, at which General Secretary Arthur E. Hoffmier officiated.

A check for $15 has been received at division headquarters for the benefit of the mother of seventeen-year-old Russell Vaughn, who left the service to help his mother and then surrendered and was fined $10 and found guilty by a court-martial.

The money was from Mrs. Taylor Alderdice, president of the Mothers of Democracy, who read the pitiful story of the boy who deserted to support his mother and younger brothers, who were in want.

Major A. M. Rogers, who has been at Camp Stanley, San Antonio, has been made assistant camp surgeon to Lieutenant-Colonel McCormack.

Several hundred trained men in the depot brigade have been transferred to the regiments of the division to fill vacancies made by transferring men to the machine gun battalions being organized. Battalions 6 and 12 supplied 800 men for the 42nd Infantry and 1460 men were taken from the regiments for the machine gun battalions.

Private Willis H. Morrill of Brewer, Me., who attempted to board a moving train at his home town and fell under the wheels, had part of his left foot amputated at the base hospital.

An officers' tennis tournament will be played on 27 courts of the camp. Entries will close tonight with Captain R. F. Nelligan, camp athletic director.

Major David A. Palmer has been appointed summary court officer for the 73rd Regiment and will hear the cases not referred to a court.

Lieutenant-Colonel R. A. Smith commandant of the third and fourth officers' training school, has arrived as acting commandant of the headquarters trains and military police. Captain Richard S. Fuller is adjutant of the department.

PRESIDENT OUT EARLY ON THE GOLF LINKS

Wilson Has Best Night's Rest in Months; Enjoys Magnolia's Perfect Weather

Magnolia, Aug. 16.—President Wilson started in the day with his favorite pastime, golf, going to the links at an early hour, according to his custom, in order to play undisturbed.

He arose at 7, saying that he had had the best night's rest he had enjoyed for months; and immediately after breakfast motored to a nearby golf course with Dr. Grayson and Gordon Auchincloss, son-in-law of Colonel E. M. House.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Wilson expressed their delight at the extraordinary weather, which seemed made to order for the presidential visit. Magnolia was basking in its most beautiful aspect, with clear, deep blue skies and a fresh breeze.

The seclusion of the President is being carefully guarded by a detachment of 100 United States Marines, who are on duty in three eight-hour shifts. Not only the house and grounds occupied by the presidential party, but the entire town, beaches and railroad station are patrolled. Fifteen secret service men, on guard in eight-hour shifts, are constantly near the President. There is a special patrol of the coast, so that no enemy raider could possibly get within firing distance of the town.

One of the secret service men attached to the party said to an Associated Press writer:

"If anyone ever deserved to remain undisturbed on the links, it is he, and he earned the right. It is the President. He has had a very arduous season and certainly needs a good rest."

Seaman Joseph J. Waters, U. S. N., of No. 333 Boylston street, Brookline, who was accidentally drowned at Portsmouth, N. H., last Thursday, was buried with full naval honors at St. Joseph's Cemetery in Roxbury, today, following a solemn requiem mass at St. Mary's Church of the Assumption. Sailors and G. A. R. veterans were in attendance and his former comrades acted as pall-bearers. A detail of 16 men from Commonwealth Pier fired a volley over the grave.

TO LIMIT SPEED OF ARMY MOTORS IN CITY

The speed limit may be reduced to five miles an hour within a radius of Boston proper.

Court Enlivened By Monkeys; Owners Arraigned.

Two small monkeys and their owners, Amadeo Capra of Providence, R. I., and Nicola Capra of New Jersey, furnished considerable entertainment today to United States Commission Hayes and his office force in the Federal Building. The men were arraigned, charged with failing to return their questionnaires.

They are illiterate organ grinders, with no permanent home address. They are not related to each other. They were arrested yesterday afternoon at Yarmouth by agents of the Department of Justice and brought to Boston today for a hearing.

While the men were being arraigned before Commissioner Hayes the monkeys were perched on the rail adjoining the commissioner's desk. One of the pair appeared particularly anxious to form the acquaintanceship of the commissioner, who reached up and shook hands with him. In order to quell the chattering of the pair, a looking glass was produced and the two were permitted to become better acquainted with themselves.

The cases against the two men were continued till August 30.

Keep the Homes as Safe as the Soldiers' Camps

Copyright, 1918, Star Company.

The military law forbids saloons within half a mile of any military encampment.

That is good—excellently good.

But the law could be bettered.

The law ought to forbid saloons within half a mile of ANY HOME.

A thing which is so mischievous and so vile that it cannot safely be tolerated in the vicinity of such splendid, healthy, intelligent, young men as those who are in the military camps is certainly not fit to be tolerated in the vicinity of homes where other young men (and women, too) are engaged in the war work that supports the soldiers in the camps and on the fighting front.

What sense is there in guarding THE FIRST LINE of national defence against the corrupting and demoralizing effects of whiskey and permitting whiskey to corrupt and demoralize THE SECOND LINE of national defence?

Why should our soldiers be protected from whiskey and the young men who will soon be soldiers be not protected from whiskey?

If whiskey is bad for the man in uniform, then whiskey is bad for the man not in uniform.

That is common sense.

What is the use of cutting off a few tentacles of a devil-fish and leaving it alive with hundreds of other tentacles?

Kill the devil-fish and be done with it.

Harpoon it through its black heart and rip the life out of its ugly carcass.

That is the way to treat a DEVIL-FISH.

And that is the way to treat WHISKEY.

Broaden the law that forbids whiskey to be sold to soldiers or sailors.

Forbid the sale of whiskey TO ANYBODY.

Forbid THE MANUFACTURE of whiskey.

Confiscate all the whiskey in the country.

Knock in the heads of the barrels!

Spill the stuff into the gutters!

Let it run down into the sewers.

There is where whiskey belongs, anyway—in the sewers.

It might do some good there.

It might kill a few hundred sewer rats.

Even a sewer rat can't stand whiskey—though the creature revels in vileness and subsists on unspeakable filth.

No wonder the authorities forbid whiskey to our soldiers and sailors.

No wonder they don't want our manly defenders poisoned with stuff that kills even a sewer rat!

And the homes of the land ought to have the same protection that the military camps have.

The boys at the camps SHOULD BE PROTECTED.

And so should the mothers and wives and sisters of the boys in the camps.

Protect THE HOMES of the nation!

Keep the sons and the fathers sober!

Suppress whiskey!

Shut up the saloons!

How they, redeemed by war, dedicated their lives to the services of Humanity is as fascinating a love story as any ever told. # GARRETT P. SERVISS' ARTICLE

Why a Water Drop on the Stove Darts Around Like a Ball—Tension Which Gives a Skin to Liquids Is One of the Most Surprising of Nature's Forces

By Garrett P. Serviss

"Will you kindly explain why drops of water placed upon a piece of red-hot metal will take the form of a bead, at first racing around like quicksilver and later becoming stationary, and gradually disappearing? I have noticed that drops of water on a very hot oil stove, if they meet, unite into one large bead, then become stationary, and at last vanish in vapor.—F. C. B."

YOUR question leads into the "fairyland of science," with which few are as familiar as they ought to be for their own pleasure and profit. The teachers of science today seem to have wandered far from the flowery path that was pursued by the greatest of them all who ever used the English language, Professor John Tyndall.

If there was a John Tyndall in every school nature would be far less of a sealed book than she is to the majority of "educated" people. He used to answer questions like yours by means of experiments and explanations that electrified and fascinated his auditors. He would have shown you how a drop of water thrown upon a hot plate generated enough vapor at its lower surface to lift it out of contact with the plate, or, as he was accustomed, picturesquely, to put the statement, the drop was "sustained by the recoil of the molecular projectiles discharged from its under surface."

Due to Inequalities

The darting about is due to inequalities in the forces acting upon the drop. Its final disappearance arises from the gradual evaporation of the water composing the drop. But even more interesting than the conduct of the water in cushioning itself on its own vapor is the manner in which it assumes a globular shape, while, as you acutely noticed, a number of racing drops when meeting combine to form a single larger drop.

The explanation of these phenomena takes us into the submicroscopic world of the molecules, where things are so small that man may never succeed in actually seeing them, although he perceives their behavior almost as well as if they were visible.

The attraction of the molecules for one another is the key of the secret, together with the fact that a globular, or spherical, figure is the shape which includes the greatest volume within the smallest surface so that any collection of molecules when free to move among themselves (as they are in a liquid), and not interfered with, inevitably take the spherical form, and if they are but little interfered with they approximate to that form. Thus when the water is lifted out of contact with the hot plate its molecules draw one another around their common centre as closely as possible and form a bead-shaped drop.

If such a drop encounters another the molecules of the two intermingle, and pull one another symmetrically around the common centre of the entire mass, and so a larger drop is formed from the two smaller ones.

But a drop of water is a far more wonderful thing than this outline description of the way it assumes its round form indicates. It has a virtual, or potential, skin. This is due to what is called surface tension, one of the most surprising of nature's commonly unnoticed forces. The surface-tension arises from the mutual attractions of the molecules, and it exists, like an elastic membrane, on the surface of every liquid whether it is collected into a sphere or not.

The thickness of the surface film, or quasi membrane, is equal to the radius of the sphere of the molecular attraction. This radius, or the distance over which the attraction of any molecule of the liquid acts upon its neighbors, is excessively small, perhaps not more than a half-millionth or a millionth of an inch, but that is sufficient to include a large number of molecules.

Familiar Example

Any molecules that lie nearer the surface of a drop, or a body of water, than the length of the radius of molecular attraction are drawn inward, or downward, by a greater sum of attractions than that which draws them outward or upward, because a part of their spheres lies beyond the surface of the water, where there is no attraction. Thus a residual force acts upon those molecules, tending to hold them in, and this results in a tension resembling that of a stretched membrane, covering the water surface.

A familiar example of the strain of surface-tension is furnished by a soap-bubble, which, if the pipestem through which it has been filled with air is left open, will contract, driving the air out of the stem, sometimes with force enough to blow out a candle flame. Different liquids have different degrees of surface-tension, and the tension is diminished by heat. Even fluids, like air, have surface-tension, and when two or more liquids or fluids are in contact a tension is established along their surfaces of contact which often presents astonishing phenomena.

It is surface-tension that causes oil poured upon the sea to spread out into an almost infinitely thin layer. A bit of camphor thrown upon clean water behaves in a most extraordinary manner owing to changes of surface tension. As the camphor dissolves the tension diminishes on the side where the dissolution is most rapid, and then, being pulled more strongly by the tension on the other side, the camphor starts off as if it were a live thing. The rise of water in thin tubes, called capillary attraction, is a phenomena due to surface-tension.

Modern Armor

The soldiers of old went forth to fight, clad in cumbersome and expensive armor, which, while serving as a protection, nevertheless hindered them from putting forth their best fighting strength. Today, Martin Jelalian, an inventor, of Rhode Island, has made it possible for a soldier to be protected by armor. He is one of several dozen inventors who have reinvented the coat of mail.

The device is a bullet-proof metallic structure which surrounds the body and extends from the top of the shoulders to below the thighs. This steel coat consists of two like parts held together across the chest by means of straps. Hooks attach the coat to semi-cylindrical pieces of metal which fit closely about the upper part of the leg and are fastened behind by straps. The inner surface of the armor is padded. The head is protected by a lined mask composed of the same metal.—Popular Science Monthly.

THE PEOPLE YOU INVITE TO YOUR HOME

You are the worst sort of hypocrite if you invite a person to your home merely because you think it is your duty or because you think it may result advantageously to you.

Those who pass the threshold of your home upon invitation from you should be considered in the light of friends, and as such, should hold a place in your heart.

The presence of such a person should be a real delight to you.

What are you, if you say: "Oh, I suppose we will have to invite Mr. and Mrs. So-and-So, although I don't care for them."

You are not honest.

You turn from the truly human person to the mean, designing one, who aims only to do that which means some sort of personal gain.

And what is there to life when such a trait is predominant?

Real friendships are barred, because there is no place for them.

It is everlasting scheming which brings about a grasping, prestige-seeking or money-seeking disposition.

There can be no real happiness in such a life.

MUST REDUCE LOSS OUR SOLDIERS SUFFER

By Clara E. Laughlin

PEACE has its shocking wastes, scarce less than war.

But peace, with all its blessedness, is a more individualistic condition, and war a more communistic. The necessities of war force us to become highly organized; the sympathies of war are tremendous because war teaches us our very great dependence on one another.

The waste of human lives in war, the maiming and maddening and blinding, the starving and other privations of old people, children, mothers, appal us. We hasten to add our best quota of help in as many agencies for relief and reparation as we are able to aid.

What Do We Learn?

And if we are among those who, in addition to giving of their money for these causes, are privileged to give also of themselves, one of the first things wherewith we are impressed is: How much we are learning, under this extraordinary pressure, that we shall "carry on" into times of peace?

The waste of human lives in badly-managed economic and social and hygienic conditions before the war appalled only the few who were trained to deal with such waste.

The maiming and maddening and blinding went on and on, some of it caused by brutality and some by drink and some by greed and some by stupidity and much by indifference. But we didn't realize it.

Now we are beginning to know wherein we have been remiss. And those of us who are paying a heavy price in this war are glimpsing a manifold return. Our suffering and sacrifice is going to buy not only the world's security against barbarism, but the world's redemption from many forms of injustice which passed, heretofore, as civilization.

We have, for instance, never been truly civilized in our care of the mentally sick. We have progressed a long way in the past few years, but we have a long, long way yet to go. The waste of human potentialities in that large class of the afflicted hardly gave us pause.

Then our allies began coping with great numbers of soldiers and civilians mentally undone by shock and strain. It was unthinkable that all these should be dumped in the discard surrounded with flower gardens and forgotten—left to living death!

So, sundry persons devoted themselves to the study of salvage in this quarter. They experimented with occupations which the mentally sick might pursue. There was a two-fold policy in this: Cure, either whole or partial, through graduated occupation, rediscipline ing the errant mind; and, failing that, the reduction of waste, of the burden the "mind-sick" must be to the community, by teaching them to share, as they were able, in their own support.

Workers Are Prepared

One group of women who volunteered for this service and took the very intensive training course to qualify for it was at a State hospital not long ago engaged in their merciful experimenting.

They found an Italian woman who had been there eleven years in a sort of half-dead apathy from which, the attendants said, nothing ever roused her. The visitors thought she might be taught to knit. They gave her yarn and needles and were about to proceed with instruction.

But she needed none! She at once "set up" a stocking and got under way with it in the most expert manner imaginable. And that wasn't all! As her needles clicked off their stitches she began to sing—to sing the lovely old folk-songs of Italy that she had been wont to sing long ago, as she knitted and, perhaps, watched her flock of sheep or goats or rode home in her blue-hooded cart across the wide Roman campagna.

In eleven long years no one had heard her sing; no one had suspected that she could do anything. Now she is knitting happily. She does not know about the war; about the sufferings and triumphs of her glorious Italy. But she seems able to recollect it, in some degree, as she knew it in her youth—her years of love.

DESPONDENT WIDOW SEEKS HELP

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

I HAVE been receiving some very unusual letters lately. Among them is the one I give below—so touching, so appealing that I am sure the readers of this column will be as much impressed by it as I have been:

"Dear Madam: I have read your article in the paper about the man who wrote to ask you how he could bear his life, now that the wife he loved so dearly was gone from him.

"I think it is very hard for any one to answer his question unless one has had sorrows of one's own. But I would answer, and I think every mother in the world would answer the same way, that now that his wife has passed away he should give the love he gave to her to the things that were dearest to her and were a part of her—the children.

Might Be Cruel

"To let them be adopted by others, strangers perhaps, would be cruel; to go back to his old, roving life would make not only them but him unhappy; to try and join his wife by taking his own life would be making a leap in the dark. He might not find her ever again by using such unworthy means to do so. It is bad enough that his little children are left motherless, so why should he consider leaving them fatherless, too?"

"Doesn't he know what her last smile meant? It said to him; 'Be good to our children. Do not forsake them when they need you most. Love them always as I have loved you.'

"Dear Mrs. Woodrow, I write this letter with a broken heart. When I was only twenty-three years old my husband died and I was left with two little children. My sorrow made me selfish. I forgot the little ones. I felt that there was nothing left for me to live for; the world was black. I grieved so that I lost my health and became so ill that I was finally sent to a hospital.

"One day the children were brought there to visit me, and when I saw them I ached to take them to my heart, to hold them tight, to kiss them and whisper sweet things to them. But I was too weak and ill to do so. My little boy came to my bed, and said; 'Hello, mother, dear; how do you feel?' Of course, I can't write you my feelings then. And when the time came for them to go, my baby cried and my little boy couldn't say good-by for his tears.

"I couldn't cry. I couldn't talk. But after they went I began to realize that they still needed me, they still wanted me. From that day I began to fight for my life just for their sakes. I am still fighting and hope some day to win back my health in order that I may give my little ones their mother again.

"This man who has written you has health. He can work and give his children a good home. He is ahead of me. But I will not give up.

"Tell me, though, do you believe it is possible for me to win out?

"Respectfully, R."

I do believe that it is possible for you to win out. I do not say that lightly or in the hope of cheering and comforting you. I say it because I believe it.

Of Either Faith

If you are a Catholic, you may be acquainted with the cures that have taken place at Lourdes and other spots sacred to those of that faith. These cannot be disputed. The incurably lame have thrown away their crutches, sight has been restored to blind eyes, hearing to deaf ears.

If you are a Protestant, you may be aware of the remarkable and inexplicable cures among the early Wesleyans and the Quakers. Christian Science healings are so common as to have come within the observation of almost every one.

But the great point is this: The fact that your children need you and that you feel this need so deeply is a spiritual call that in its vitality and intensity may easily, perhaps instantaneously, vanquish the ills of the flesh.
